With the dry, hot weather this week, farmers were making hay while the sun shines, and the barley harvesting continued at full throttle after starting last week. By Sunday, state soil moisture was rated at 25 percent short or very short with only five percent rated surplus by the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service. But with no rain in sight this week, fields dried quickly, and in many places the corn leaves were starting to curl.

Almost any place you looked farmers were in the fields. The Lancaster Farming camera caught up with this machine harvesting beardie barley along Saw Mill Road just off Farmersville Road south of Ephrata. Warren Hoover was running the custom rig and has a bin full of grain as he waits for the truck. Anyone who is really a farmer knows barley makes you itchy all over, and the only place to be in a barley field is in the air-conditioned cab.

Hoover said barley was not running as strong this year in most fields, and he wasn't sure why. The custom rig is owned by Frank Hoover, and they were in the fields farmed by Aaron Hoover. Photo by Everett Newswanger, managing editor.

Hayes Becomes New Ag Secretary At Ceremony In State Capitol

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) - Pennsylvania has a new secretary of agriculture. Under the bright lights in the governor's reception room in the state capitol building Wednesday morning, Samuel E. Hayes, Jr., took the oath of office from The Honorable Yvette Kane, secretary of state. Hayes was accompanied by his wife Elizabeth.

Hayes is well-known for his leadership in the state house of representatives because he served for 22 years as the representative from the 81st district of Blair and Huntingdon Counties.

In his introductory statement, Gov. Tom Ridge congratulated Hayes on the appointment to his cabinet and called Hayes not just a friend of farmers but part of the farm family.

"A farmer by birth, a soldier by choice, and a leader by nature, no matter what the challenge, Hayes has the mettle to meet it," Gov. Ridge said. "From a 4-Her to the legislative trenches, Hayes embodies the same spirit and rugged

Another Flock In Quarantine Area Tests Positive

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — On Tuesday the state agricultural department identified, through a positive presumptive test, another flock with avian influenza (A.I.) in the Lancaster County quarantine zone.

The flock, within the zone where other flocks had already tested positive early this month, comprised 59,000 layers — not the 80,000-bird flock as previously identified in other media.

According to Dr. Max Van Buskirk, director of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Animal Health, a flock east of Mount Joy identified on Tuesday that was confirmed "suspicious" as carrying A.I. was officially confirmed as carrying the H7N2 virus late Thursday afternoon, after serologic tests were complete.

According to Van Buskirk, there have been no condemnation actions taken by the department. The destruction of the flocks have

Blue Mold Field Spraying Demo Set For Tuesday July 1

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) - The subject of blue mold in tobacco plants is not just a local topic anymore. Farmers from Ohio and Maryland say they have it too.

According to Robert Anderson, Lancaster County extension agent, Lancaster County may have found the mold a little sooner because plants were imported from North Carolina, but the air movement has taken the spores up the east coast this year. According to Anderson, last year the mold moved west of us and on up into Canada.

READING (Berks Co.) — While some high school graduates have prepared themselves academically, it's clear that most don't have a practical, working knowledge of the food processing industry.

That's the message nine Reading area school superintendents learned during a tour of the Berks Packing Company facility in Reading on Tuesday.

An 18-member tour group, comprised of school superintendents from Reading, Oley Valley, Hamburg, Wilson, Exeter, Governor Mifflin, and other districts throughout Berks County — in addition to several agri-industry representatives — learned what happens to beef and swine when it leaves the farm. The group saw firsthand how products from the farm are processed into frankfurters, ham, salami, ring bologna, and other items for the table. They also learned more about where the industry is going, and what types of workers it is looking for.

Berks Packing, owned by the Boylan family, Reading, was established in 1933. Ralph Weise, vice president of operations, who has been working for the company 26 years, spoke about what it is like for a processing company to remain in the forefront of a total quality management philosophy that has been in place in the company for 15 years.

"Berks Packing was one of the first of the mid-size regional meat processing plants in the United States to get total quality control acceptance by the USDA in 1982," said Weise.

When Weise started working for the company about the time Tropical Storm Agnes devastated the region in the summer of 1972, the company maintained an in-house analytical laboratory. The laboratory's work has grown to encompass a full array of microbiological food safety work, in addition to a great deal of FDA food safety and compliance monitoring.

The quality control lab is staffed 24 hours a day, through three shifts, helping to formulate correct balances of food ingredients as well as processing regular bacteria checks on every level of the plant. Those checks include scheduled monitoring of equipment and personnel to ensure the plant's strict food safety regulations are adhered to.

Weise noted that Berks Packing processes between 360-380 line items at different sizes and varieties. The plant doesn't produce fresh sausage, however. All product is cooked. They are now becoming involved with turkey cutting and they do some veal, Weise noted.

The packing plant employees 120 people, including two unions (meat cutter and teamsters). The privately held company does 70

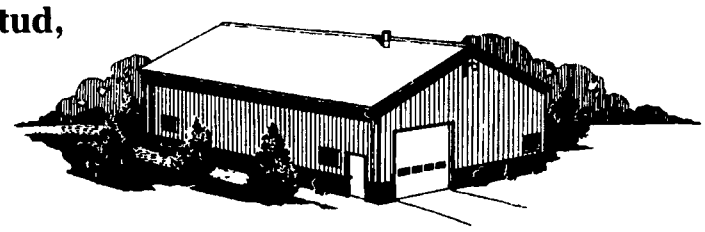
The Building you want.
The Lease you need.

Whether your new farm or commercial building is of pole, timber column, stud, steel or block construction; choose Telmark lease financing.



Telmark has been leasing equipment for over 30 years. Did you know that we've been leasing new buildings for that long too? Consider the features:

- Tax deductibility and accelerated write-offs: Lease payments are income tax deductible over the term of the lease compared to 20-year depreciation of farm buildings and 39-year depreciation of commercial buildings. Could reduce tax liability this year.
- Low upfront costs: Beginning costs may be as little as one monthly lease payment.
- Flexible lease term: Building lease terms start aggressively at five years but may be as long as ten, twelve, or fifteen years.
- Customized payment schedules: Lease payment schedules match your cash flow. Payment options include monthly, quarterly, annually, as well as, skip or specially designed seasonal payments.

How do you start leasing a building from Telmark? Talk with a qualified builder to determine your needs and building cost. And call your Telmark representative:

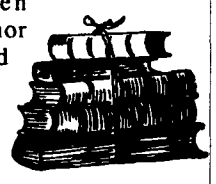
The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

JUNE 30 - JULY 6, 1997

DOG DAYS BEGIN, JULY 3.

NOT ALWAYS FIREWORKS

July 4 marks more anniversaries than just that of America's Independence Day. It is also the day, in 1855, when poet Walt Whitman published the first copies of Leaves of Grass, which, he commented, "had to be given away." It's the birthday of author Nathanial Hawthorne (1804) and patriotic songwriter George M. Cohan (1878), famous for "You're a Grand Old Flag," "Over There," and "Yankee Doodle Boy." And it's the anniversary of the deaths of two American presidents, both of whom died in 1826: John Adams and Thomas Jefferson.



Always leave them laughing when you say good-bye.

– George M. Cohan

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ An average wash uses 35 feet of clothesline; be sure you've got that much.

BEST BARBECUE SAUCE

4 cloves garlic, minced
1 cup chopped onions
1/2 cup olive oil
1 cup chopped fresh tomatoes
1/4 cup chopped black olives
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 cup orange juice
1/4 cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons apple cider vinegar
1/4 cup chopped parsley

Sauté garlic and onions in olive oil; add tomatoes and cook until reduced by about half. Add the remaining ingredients, simmer 20 minutes, and use as a marinade or grilling sauce. If preferred, blend well and serve as a sauce to accompany grilled meats. Good with poultry, beef, or lamb.

Makes about 2-1/2 cups.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

When bread or cheese softens, rain is approaching.

If the first of July be rainy weather, 'twill rain more or less for four weeks together.

If the Dog Days be clear, 'twill be fair all year.

Special Offer: Handy chart full of interesting weather proverbs. Send $3 to Weather Chart, Dept. UF, The Old Farmer's Almanac, P.O. Box 520, Dublin, NH 03444

OPINION

Eggs Are Perishable Not Poisonous

A health advocacy group wants the goverment to require labels on egg cartons warning consumers that raw or undercooked eggs can cause food poisoning. The Center for Science in the Public Interest wants the Food and Drug Administration to require egg cartons to carry labels saying: "Caution; eggs may contain illness-causing bacteria. Do not eat raw. Cook eggs until the yolk is firm."

But we agree with the egg industry that such a warning would give a false impression that all eggs are contaminated and suggest instead a continuing public education campaign urging consumers to treat eggs like any other perishable commodity.

Eggs are one of nature's most nutritious, economical, and versatile foods. With proper care and handling, it poses no greater risk than any other perishable food.

Since science has removed the cholesterol scare from eggs, this looks like the next attack on the egg industry. Common sense tells you to cook eggs before you eat them. Let's hope the government does not get involved in scaring people away from the good nutrition they can so easily get from eggs.

To File For Fuel Tax Refund

Any person who has paid the 12 cents per gallon tax on liquid fuels purchased between July 1, 1996 and April 30, 1997 and 15.5 cents per gallon from May 1, 1997 and June 30, 1997 and used the fuel in the actual production of agricultural products may obtain a refund of the taxes paid.

To receive your tax refund, you must file a claim with the Liquid Fuels Tax Refund Section of the Board of Finance and Revenue on or before September 30, 1997.

Claim forms were mailed to farmers who applied for refunds in the past two years on June 13. Forms are also available from the Board of Finance and Revenue, 500 C Finance Building, Harrisburg PA 17120 or by calling (717) 787-6534.

If you need assistance in preparing or filing your claim, contact Lynne Vergot at the Board of Finance and Revenue.

To Know The Signs Of Heat Stress

Farmers and others who work outside during summer should protect themselves from heat and humidity.

Warm temperatures and high humidity combined with heavy work can threaten your health, according to Dr. Dennis Murphy, Penn State professor of agricultural engineering.

If you will be working or playing outdoors this summer, pace yourself and stop periodically to cool off. Stay alert for signs of heat stress. This occurs when the body builds up more heat than it can get rid of.

Depending on its severity, heat stress can develop into heat cramps, heat exhaustion, or heat stroke. Symptoms of heat cramps include muscle spasms and heavy sweating.

Heat exhaustion is marked by fatigue, heavy sweating, dizziness, nausea, and fainting. Heat stroke, the most serious heat related condition, can result in coma or death. Initial symptoms include altered perspiration, shivering, nausea, and confusion.

To Prevent Heat Stress

According to Dr. Dennis Murphy, Penn State professor of agricultural engineering, there are several ways to prevent heat stress.

Drink plenty of water before and after working. Consider your age and health when deciding what and how much you can safely do. Take work breaks to fight fatigue and extend your energy. Do the hardest jobs in the morning or late afternoon, when temperatures are cooler.

Also, wear loose clothing that allows air to circulate on the skin. Adequate clothing and a hat will protect you from skin damage caused by the sun's ultraviolet rays.

If you must work in a hot or poorly ventilated building, open doors and windows to get all the ventilation possible. Set up electric fans if you can do so safely and without raising too much dust. Go outside often for fresh air.

If you feel dizzy, lightheaded, weak or overheated, or if you sweat profusely, stop working and get to a cool place immediately. Sit or lie down, drink water or juice, and bathe your face with cool water or a wet towel. If you do not feel better soon, call for help.

Also, pay attention to humidity levels. Like the wind chill index during winter, a humidity index gives you a better idea of what it really feels like to be outside. As humidity rises, you may be more prone to heat exhaustion. At 95 degrees Fahrenheit and with humidity in the 60s, heat rises well above body temperatures. This dramatically increases the risk of heat stress, especially for those who are working or playing hard.

Background Scripture:
Titus 3:1-11
Devotional Reading:
Romans 13:1-10

Hardly a week goes by that I don't receive a form letter, newspaper article, or magazine piece chronicling the growing animosities between Christians of various stripes. Very often, when I see religious groups depicted on television, the faces are angry, the words bitter, and the atmosphere depressingly negative. Interestingly enough this is generally not a matter of Methodists against Presbyterians, or Episcopalians against Baptists. The conflicts, it seems, rage within each of these and other denominations: Methodists against Methodists, Lutherans against Lutherans, and Baptists against Baptists.

What I am bemoaning here is not conflict within the churches. Conflict is normal and healthy within all groups. It is the atmosphere that surrounds and pervades these conflicts that disturbs me most. This anger grows and the bitterness continues to escalate and spiral. Christianity is often defined in the media by the things Christians are against, rather than what they are for.

INQUISITIONS & CRUSADES

Unfortunately, most, if not all of these people believe that it is for God's sake that they are being militant and they regard their emotions as righteous indignation. They defend a God who doesn't need or ask for their defense. For those outside the church, there is little or nothing that is compelling about this kind of Christianity. It was this same kind of Christian anger and fear that gave birth to the devilish Inquisitions and spurred the bloody Crusades.

Perhaps all of us need to commit to memory — and heart — Paul's words to Titus of Antioch: ". . . to speak evil of no one, to avoid quarreling, to be gentle, and to show perfect courtesy toward all men" (3:2). Four simple requests, but these could change the current atmosphere within the churches. I'm not saying there is no place for righteous anger within Christianity, but it should be the exception at most, not the rule.

Paul makes it clear that this kind of quarreling is definitely pre-Christian. It is what we are to give up when we become followers of Jesus Christ. "For we ourselves," says Paul, were once foolish, disobedient, led astray, slaves to various passions and pleasures, passing our days in malice and envy, hated by men and hating one another" (3:3). "Hated" and "hating" are too often descriptive of Christians today.

WITNESSES, NO JUDGES

Paul also reminds Titus that we are saved by Christ, not because we ourselves have achieved moral acceptability, but only because of the grace of God — ". . . but when the goodness and lovingkindness of God our Savior appeared, he saved us, not because of deeds done by us in righteousness, but in virtue of his own mercy . . . so that we might be justified in his grace and become heirs in hope of eternal life" (3:5-7). We are, all of us, as dependent upon the undeserved grace of God as those whom we judge. In fact, we are called not to judge, but to witness to the love of Jesus Christ.

And then, just in case Titus is not getting the point, Paul says again: "But avoid stupid controversies, genealogies, dissensions, and quarrels over the law, for they are unprofitable and futile" (3:9). And to underline the seriousness, Paul goes on to say: "As for a man who is factious, after admonishing him once or twice, have nothing more to do with him, knowing that such a person is perverted and sinful; he is self-condemned" (3:11).

And so are we all if we continue to divide the Church that is not ours, but his.

Dairy Producers Watch Prices Plummet

AMES, Iowa — Unusually high hay costs in portions of the country, combined with farmer pay prices the same as those in 1979 have forced thousands of the nation's dairy farmers to the brink of a financial crisis. If conditions persist, it could mean higher dairy prices for consumers, and more price volatility for producers.

Beginning in the early '60s, the benchmark price dairy farmers were paid for their milk doubled every decade. They received $3.11 per hundred pounds in 1963, $6.30 per hundred pounds in 1973, and $12.49 in 1983.

Dairy industry experts calculated that today producers should be receiving $21.00 per hundred pounds of milk, just to equal the price they received in the late '70s. The current Basic Formula Price that USDA uses to calculate the majority of the milk prices in the U.S. is $10.70. The most recent USDA dairy production cost index placed the average cost of milk production at $15.97 per 100 pounds.

A dairy producer petition movement is growing in many parts of the country, calling for the Secretary of Agriculture to intervene and stop the financial deflationary spiral. Petitions call for creating a minimum farmer pay price of $14.50 per hundred pounds.

In the heart of dairy country, Minnesota and Wisconsin combined create the largest dairy producing sector in the U.S. Together, the states have lost nearly 13,000 producers in the last seven years. And the situation has grown worse since last fall. Milking cow herd replacements are down because milk production is not profitable, and producers are beginning to send more of their cows to slaughter, eventually shortening milk supplies.

"Many Americans take their food supply for granted," said Gene Paul, President of National Farmers, an organization representing thousands of the nation's dairy farmers. "Dairy farmers in this country have taken a financial beating, and untold numbers are going out of business, which should not only concern the dairy industry, but every U.S. consumer.

U.S. Senator Arlen Specter, (R-Penn.), has introduced legislation that would help restore hope to dairy farmers. The proposals would factor in feed costs and other cash expenses to determine the Basic Formula Price (BFP), which is the basis for the price farmers are paid for their raw milk.

"An important part of Specter's legislation was a renewed request for Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman to stop the dairy devastation, by imposing a $13.50 short term farmer pay price. We're asking the Senate Agriculture Committee to move this proposal to the forefront, for the good of producers and consumers," Paul emphasized.

ATTENTION
HI-RISE LAYER MANAGERS
WE HAVE STIR AERATOR TO HELP WITH FLY & ODOR CONTROL

BIG PERFORMANCE...SMALL PRICE

SIMPLE PROCEDURE: the aerator works directly into the bed of material, forming its own windrow. Windrows can be formed from piles of nearly any size. Alleyways are not required when using the Brown aerator, so there is a great reduction in space requirements. The aerator's reverse rotation works the material from the bottom up and to the side, assuring complete mixing and agitation. LOW MAINTENANCE: the aerator is a simple design, the principle as a material mover has been proven with over 30 years experience in practical application. The aerator is hydraulically driven and equipped with patented wearplates or paddles, both of which are easily replaced.

ICMPA, MMI, Reach Milk Supply, Marketing Arrangement

STRONGSVILLE, Ohio — Two north central dairy cooperatives are building a "co-op to co-op" relationship that will improve milk supply, market balancing, and manufacturing efficiencies between the two organizations in Michigan and Indiana.

In a joint statement today, the leaders of Milk Marketing Inc., (MMI) of Strongsville, Ohio and Independent Cooperative Milk Producers Association, (ICMPA) of Grand Rapids, Michigan announced an arrangement which includes a milk supply agreement and the sale of ICMPA's Kalamazoo Creamery Company operations and assets to MMI.

"This is a win-win situation for the members of both dairy cooperatives," says Don Schriver, MMI's executive vice president and CEO. "MMI and ICMPA were faced with the same industry challenges — a smaller dairy producer base, declining milk supplies, harsh and unpredictable price swings, larger customers, and fiece competition for market share. It made economic and marketing sense to work together to reduce costs and to maximize efficiencies for our dairy farmer members."

The plan calls for an exchange of resources and capabilities. According to the long-term agreements, ICMPA will close its Kalamazoo, Michigan butter and condensed milk operation, which is used primarily as a balancing facility to process surplus milk. MMI will purchase the plant's assets, and move the ICMPA mik supply to MMI's Dairy Farm Products plant in Goshen, Indiana. The Goshen facility will perform the all-important balancing function for both organizations. The Kalamazoo assets will be transferred by August 1, 1997.

Charles Courtade, general manager, ICMPA, agrees that the relationship will be beneficial to the farmer-members of both organiztaions. "After thoroughly studying the situation, ICMPA's board of directors unanimously agreed to this long-term relationship," says Courtrade. "The positive impact this will have on our ability to market milk for the highest return to member-producers was the driving force behind the board's decision."

Under the arrangement, ICMPA and MMI will work together on milk supply needs, mutually strengthen the ability to efficiently balance supplies when there's too much milk in the marketplace, reduce the costly overhead of running two balancing facilities in the same market area, and help to stabilize member incomes.

"It made no sense to continue duplicating efforts. MMI was balancing milk in Goshen; just across the state line, ICMPA was doing the same in Kalamzoo," says Courtrade. "Why run two plants when one would to the job? This arrangement is logical. ICMPA members get a stable market for their milk, and access to a balancing facility. MMI gets a year-round milk supply to maximize the capacity and potential of its Goshen operations."

From a geographic standpoint, the businesses collaboration makes sense. ICMPA and MMI are located closely to similar markets and milk supply areas. ICMPA markets and processes milk for 700 dairy producers in the state of Michigan. MMI represents 7,500 producers in 11 states, including Michigan's southern tip.

"This is an exciting cooperative arrangement. If cooperatives are to maximize returns to their dairy farmer-owners, they must pursue relationships like this to increase efficiencies for members in the movement and marketing of their milk," says Schriver. "It's just that simple. MMI and ICMPA share a common vision of working together to maximize returns to their farm families.

Headquartered in Grand Rapids, Michigan, ICMPA is a dairy cooperative that markets and processes milk for its 700 dairy producer members in the state of Michigan. Last year ICMPA marketed 965 million pounds of milk.

With 1996 sales revenues of more than $1.15 billion. Milk Marketing Inc. is the nation's third largest dairy producer-owned cooperative and the 11st largest dairy food processor. Headquartered in Strongsville, Ohio, MMI's 7,500 dairy farm families in 11 states (Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, New York, West Virginia, Massachuesetts, Vermont and Delaware) process and market nearly 7 billion pounds of milk.

Grazing Gazette

PENNSTATE
College of Agricultural Sciences

LARRY MULLER
Penn State University

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — I recently returned from attending the first part of the 18th International Congress held in Western Canada (I needed to be home in Pa. during week 2). I am sitting among many people at O'hare Airport in Chicago and reflecting back on the last 5 days in Manitoba. Several people have curiously looked at the notebook and book bag with the words XVIII International Grassland Congress (IGC). This is probably not the best setting to be attempting to educate people about forages and animals.

What is the IGC? Why would I and several others from Pennsylvania, including some producers, attend the meeting? What did I learn, and in particular, what may be useful to Pennsylvania producers and industry? Was it worth my time and your tax money? (My trip was partially funded by a travel grant from the American Forage and Grassland Council). I will try to answer these questions from my perspectives and perhaps dedicate a future column to more detail of specific areas of interest.

What is the IGC?

The first IGC meeting was held nearly 75 years ago, and a meeting has been held every four years since. This years' 18th Congress was hosted in Canada at two locations, Maritoba and Saskatchewan. Four years ago the meeting was at New Zealand, and in the year 2001, it will be held in Brazil. The fact that 1/3 of the world's land is used for grassland more than any other suggests that future IGC's may be even more important.

This year's Congress was entitled "Grasslands 2000." About 1200 people from 90 countries attended to present and exchange up-to-date information on World's Grasslands. A large trade show displayed products and information to help achieve successful forage production in the coming century. This statement alone articulates the basic purpose of the IGC. The most important aspect of the IGC is networking with grassland scientists and researchers from around the world. The Congress provides an important opportunity to meet others who may be working on similar types of research, or who may have similar problems and challenges.

Why would we attend?

The program was broad and included talks and discussions on some of the following topics: 1) Future world food production and implications for the environment and grasslands, 2) Animal intake and grazing systems, 3) Alternative uses of forages, 4) Novel methods of plant improvement, 5) Constraints on forages and grassland production, and 6) Post harvest management. Over 1000 individual papers were presented along with the 60 invited papers. There were specific topics such as forage preservation, forage production, genetic engineering of plants, nutrition, among many others. We had two poster presentations of some of our grazing work. Whereas the meeting had a focus on research, there were many extension educators, agribusiness representatives, and producers in attendance. It is the diversity of people with different backgrounds and from many countries that is the real benefit of the Congress. We are forced to look outside "the black box" and see a more holistic or global view of animal and forage productions systems and their impact on food production and the environment.

For me personally, the most valuable part of the Congress was the interaction and networking with people from other countries who work with forages and dairy cattle. There were several informal discussions with scientists and producers from Ireland, England, France, Netherlands, New Zealand, Australia, Japan, Columbia, Argentina, Brazil, and South Africa. Researchers and producers in these countries are all interested in improving grazing management, forage production and utilization, and profitability. None of us have adequate resources to effectively study all aspects and we need to avoid duplication of efforts. A group of eight of us discussed the future sharing of information, problems, and questions on a regular basis. Using the computer to exchange information will be used to communicate on a frequent basis.

Dairy Producers

Some of the most enjoyable and informative discussions were with a dairy production from Great Britain. He milks 400 cows and is currently president of the British Grassland Society. We also had tours to three dairy farms in Manitoba. The three may be typical of many Canadian dairy farms: high milk production, good type, high quality forage (stored and/or pasture), high sales of breeding stock, and commercial hay production for the United States market. Herd size ranged from 45 to 100 registered milk cows with herd averages from 22,000 to 28,500 (3x) pounds of milk. The highest producing cow in Western Canada (42,000 lb. milk) was owned by Clear Farms.

I wonder about the future of these farm businesses without a quoto system in the future and with less income from the sale of breeding stock. Their ability to grow and harvest high quality alfalfa hay for the United States market appears to be an important income source.

What did I learn?

With a conference so large and diverse, it is difficult to identify specific information that can be immediately applied. I have a better understanding and overview of the issues and challenges facing all of us in the world involved with animal agriculture. As I sit in O'Hare Airport, the pollution around Chicago and the thousands of people who have walked by the last hour have reinforced our need to improve the environment, and to produce more food. Clearly, the grasslands and the forage production in the United States and world will play a key role in both.

Some specific points that stick in my mind after a week of "information overload" are:

- Forage maceration at mowing shows great promise to enhance field wilting rate and improve animal performance.
- Pure ryegrass may be better than any combination of ryegrass and alfalfa when fed to beef cattle.
- A new cellulase product improved the fermentation and nutritive value of alfalfa/grass silages.
- Grasses may absorb more CO2 than produced during a day (improves the environment).

Time to end. My airplane is ready to leave. Yes, the trip was worth my time and hopefully will be a payback to your tax dollar.

Nittany Lion Fall Classic Set Again

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Dairy Science Club and the Pennsylvania Holstein Association will team up to sponsor the 14th annual Nittany Lion Fall Classic consignment sale on Saturday, November 15. In addition to a strong Holstein line up, this year's sale will again include 12-15 high quality Jerseys. The Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Club is also supporting the sale.

Last year's sale averaged $1,513 on 66 Holsteins. The 14 Jerseys in last year's sale averaged $1,271. This year's sale committee is looking forward to the 1997 Fall Classic Sale. The sale managers and selection committee will be visiting Holstein and Jersey breeders in the next few months to select cattle.

The goal of this year's sale is to select about 65 top quality springing Holstein heifers and young Holstein cows. A select group of pedigreed calves will be sold. The club plans to select 12 to 15 top pedigreed Jersey cows, heifers, and calves.

The 1997 Nittany Lion Fall Classic sale committee members are:

Overall Chair, Meranda Dum, Landisburg, PA; Assistant Chair, Chris Connelly, Pennsylvania Furnace, PA.

Selections chairs, Terri Snook, Lafayette, NJ; Cory Meyers, St. Thomas, PA, Lisa Stuchal, Slippery Rock, PA.

Jersey selections chair, Cory Meyers, St. Thomas, PA.

Dairy Science Club members use the Fall Classic as an excellent "hands-on" educational experience. The sale provides first hand experience in selecting, merchandising and managing dairy cattle. Last year over 50 club members were involved in the sale.

If you are interested in consigning, call Ken Raney at the PHA office (814) 234-0364; Meranda Dum at (717) 789-3701, or Chris Connelly at (814) 234-3396, or the Department of Dairy and Animal Science at Penn State and ask for Larry Muller (814-863-4205) or Dale Olver (814-863-3914). Secretary Of Agriculture To Speak At Governor's School

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Samuel E. Hayes Jr., Pennsylvania's secretary of agriculture, will be the keynote speaker at the opening ceremony June 29 at 3 p.m. in Room 112, Kern Graduate Commons, for the Pennsylvania Governor's School for the Agricultural Sciences, held on the University Park campus, June 29-Aug. 2.

Hayes, who was named acting secretary of agriculture in May, is a former member of the state House of Representatives. Hayes played an instrumental role in establishing and bringing the Governor's School to Penn State in 1986.

"Sam Hayes has been a leading advocate for our program over the past 11 years," said Marianne Fivek, university director of the school and assistant professor of agricultural and extension education. "The Governor's School has successfully attracted some of the state's best and brightest young scholars to professions in the food, agricultural and natural resource sciences."

Each summer, 64 of the state's top high school juniors and seniors spend five weeks at Penn State, learning about agricultural sciences such as animal and plant science, natural resources and the environment, and food science and agricultural engineering. The students work on research projects with professors and have access to college facilities, including specialized libraries and laboratories.

More than 700 students have attended the school since its inception. Nearly all of them have gone on to college, and many have chosen to attend Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "Governor's School helps students from all backgrounds see that agriculture is deeply intertwined with all aspects of living, from the food system to conservation of natural resources."

Between 70 and 100 College of Agricultural Sciences faculty and staff members take part in the program each year, teaching such subjects as contemporary issues in animal agriculture, enterpreneurism in agribusiness, genetics of domestic animals, natural resource management and engineering, insects and agriculture, and wood engineering. The students take core courses in 11 areas and choose four elective courses from 12 areas. The scholars also can choose to participate in more than 50 independent reseach projects.

During the program, students take field trips to agricultural businesses and federal and state agencies and get hands-on experience working in laboratories, greenhouses and farms. Planned activities include visits to Longwood Botanical Gardens, Hershey Foods, the New Bolton Veterinary Center at the University of Pennsylvania, the State Capitol and Shaver's Creek Environmental Center.

At the end of the school, participants receive a special state certificate. The students are not graded or ranked, leaving them free to learn without pressure.

The Governor's School is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Education, the state's intermediate units and Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. Pennsylvania Governor's Schools also are offered in the arts, sciences, health care, education and international studies.

When Is The Best Time To Cut Hay?

The haymaking season has arrived once again in this region. While some farmers have already made the first cutting, others are still waiting. What is the right time for the first cutting? It's likely you'll get many answers to this question.

Alfalfa — or as non-Americans call it, Lucerne, is the number-one hay crop here. Because it is not an annual crop, alfalfa is supposed to last several years with several cuts each year. A number of good farmers want to allow one cut (preferably the first one) to reach bloom so as not to deplete the plants too soon.

Other farmers have listened to research and know that the nutrient composition of alfalfa hay changes with stage of maturity. So they either cut early or they cut late, depending on which content they want to maximize. The later the cut is made, the greater the dry-matter yield; thus, maximum tonnage per acre comes from late cutting. However, as alfalfa matures and yield increases, so does fiber content — dramatically so.

Fiber in dairy feeds and rations is an essential nutrient. Too little, and cows get sick on rumen acidosis, produce low fat contents in their milk and they may even die. Too much, and cows starve, which causes a drop in milk production levels — the result of insufficient essential nutrients, such as protein and certain minerals, which are present per volume of feed that a cow is able to eat each day.

Knowing the fiber content in alfalfa is critical in determining the best time to cut. If you feed high amounts of concentrate to high-milking cows — or even to high-milking dairy goats or dairy sheep, for that matter — then you might be better off with a high-fiber content in your alfalfa, which means a late cut. This is also true when the silage for cows has been cut very short (pieces of fiber are less than 1 inch). Desirable fiber for ruminants has to have length (more than 1 inch) for chewing and rechewing, regurgitating and ruminating. Concentrates may have fiber contents, but they are too short, except for cottonseed. Silage often is cut short, as in concentrates, because it is blown to heights of 60 to 80 feet into upright silos, and long fiber will clog the blower pipes.

For more than 100 years, fiber in dairy feeds has been expressed as crude fiber. Acid detergent fiber (ADF) or neutral detergent fiber (NDF) are two more sophisticated, more modern testing methods, in which everything except cellulose, lignin and hemicellulose (plant fiber structures) are removed. As the plant matures, these structurs grow and stiffen, enclosing other essential nutrients such as protein, energy and calcium.

If a farmer does not have to worry about a shortage of fiber in the dairy ration or wants to feed a hay with less fiber and higher nutrient content to the lower-yield cows, then the first cut of alfalfa and subsequent cuts should be made early on. There is an inverse relationship between fiber contents in hay and contents of other nutrients such as protein, energy and calcium. Simply stated, there are more essential nutrients and less fiber in less mature hay. This kind of hay will, however, yield less dry-matter tonnage per acre. On the other hand, this kind of hay wil save on buying concentrates, because it can replace some of the expensive protein supplements.

How serious is this relationship between age of the hay plant and its nutrient contents? The most comprehensive research data are for alfalfa, but the relationships are similiar, whether it's alfalfa, red clover, timothy, orchard grass, oats or some other forages for hay. With some hays, aging happens faster than in other species; timothy or red clover do not mature as fast as alfalfa or orchard grass, which is probably why horse breeders favor these hays. Of course, the big difference between alfalfa and clovers versus grasses is that the latter have much less protein and calcium than legumes.

The attached table shows the decreasing contents of protein, calcium and energy with advancing maturity for each of the different hays on a 100 percent dry-matter basis. At the same time, the table details the increasing amounts of fiber, acid detergent or neutral detergent, with advancing maturity. Research has also shown interesting relationships for the two types of detergent fiber, which is why they are both listed in the table.

Acid detergent fiber (ADF) has an inverse relationship with digestibility of the ration. This means the lower the ADF number, the more digestible the feed ration is and the more nutrients will be absorbed by dairy animals. Thus, the early-cut hay not only has more protein, energy and calcium, but it is more digestible overall. Often, "quality hay" is promoted in educational programs, because it does replace concentrates.

Neutral detergent fiber (NDF) has an inverse relationship with voluntary feed intake of the ration. The lower the NDF number, the more of this feed dairy animals want to eat. However, caution is in

Milk Trading Milestone

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Less than three months after its launching, the Coffee, Sugar & Cocoa Exchange's new BFP milk futures contract passed its first milestone — open interest of 1,000 contracts. This early success reflects the CSCE's efforts to provide the $19.9 billion United States dairy industry with a mechanism to manage increasing price risk in light of the scheduled end of federal dairy price support programs in 1999.

This new contract, which began trading on April 8, is cash settled against the Basic Formula Price (BFP) for milk, an index price calculated and announced monthly by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA). The BFP is the pricing mechanism for milk purchases and sales used by 90% of the dairy industry.

THE NUTRITION EDUCATION PEOPLE

Dairy Industry Future

SCOTT E. HIGGINS, CEO
American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East

The future of the dairy industry relies primarily on how well we listen and respond to consumer preferences. For years, we have watched the juice and soda industry create new products and increase sales. This has happened at the dairy industry's expense. Beverage companies have created a very lively and colorful image for juice and soda — by simply focussing on children.

The dairy industry has the same opportunity as any other beverage provider; in fact we once used to be the beverage of choice among children. A recent study reveals that milk's image among kids is boring, dull and inviting. The market share for milk among children 6-11 years old is slipping away to other beverages. From 1985-1995, their milk consumption declined 15 percent.

As an industry, we need to more aggressively create and intensely market new milk-based beverages to our younger generations and give them some new reasons to drink milk. We must change our mindset from selling a commodity to selling a beverage. To compete in the beverage business, we must approach the market with milk beverages that offer new taste, convenience, portability and a contemporary image for our young customers. The opportunities are here, it is simply up to our own industry to make the move and rethink the way we market milk.

Blue Mold

Right now the dry weather has helped to keep the mold from working in the fields that are already planted. But almost every seed bed is infected.

John Yocum, senior extension researcher at Landisville, said that farmers should not transplant obviously infected plants. And if the bed has mold, the field of new plants should be treated immediately.

Anderson, Yocum, and Mike Fleming of American Cyanamid (makers of the fungicide Acrobat used to control the mold, have planned an emergency spraying demonstration. The demonstration will be held Tuesday, July 1 from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. on the Aaron Beiler farm on South Maple Avenue in Leola.

By that time most of the tobacco will be planted, and Anderson wants farmers to be ready to see how to properly spray. Anderson said it is critical to spray everything within a day of transplanting. And repeat applications will be necessary every week to keep the mold controlled. The fungus appears first as yellow spots on the tops of leaves. Later the leaf turns brown and is ruined. If the blue mold infects a young plant, it can kill it.

Lancaster County farmers plant about 9,000 acres each year for a total value of more than $20 million. But with the blue mold outbreak so early in the season, officials fear losses in crop value could be quite extensive.

MMI Announces Exclusive Agreement With Alfa Laval Agri

STRONGSVILLE, Ohio — Milk Marketing Inc. (MMI), the nation's third largest milk cooperative, recently reached an exclusive supply agreement with Alfa Laval Agri of Kansas City, Mo.

The agreement, which is effective July 1, 1997, calls for Alfa Laval Agri, the world's largest dairy supplier, to supply the sanitation and milkhouse supplies, capital equipment and service for the 9,000 member dairy cooperative operating in 11 northeastern states.

MMI formerly maintained a farm supply division as part of its overall operation. Citing changes in the agricultural economy, MMI's Executive Vice President and CEO, Don Schriver, said, "Today's least-cost environment mandates that every facet of business be evaluated for its efficiency, use, cost of delivery, and return on investment."

Schriver said, "While MMI markets and processes milk and value-added products on behalf of its members, Alfa Laval Agri will supply members with milkhouse equipment, sanitation needs and top-quality service." Schriver pointed to the long-standing relationship already in place with Alfa Laval Agri and noted confidence in the success of the new relationship.

According to Bill Papineau, president of West Agro, Inc., "This program represents another extension of the partnering relationship that MMI and Alfa Laval Agri, through its West Agro operation, have developed and grown since 1990. It further demonstrates how two organizations, each contributing what it can do best, can cooperate to provide the best products and service for the MMI members."

Headquartered in Strongsville, Ohio, MMI is the third largest dairy cooperative and the 11th largest dairy food company in the U.S. In fiscal year 1996, MMI marketed and processed more than 7 billion pounds of milk. MMI represents dairy farm families in Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Vermont, West Virginia and Delaware.

Laboratory Expands Service Hours

Dairy One works to get needed change done in the dairy industry.

ITHACA, N.Y. — The Dairy One Milk Check Laboratory, long known for its accuracy, excellent service, and leadership in the field of milk analysis, has begun processing samples seven days a week. The change was instituted to improve in lab turnaround time.

Early indications are that the change is making a real difference for Milk Check customers. "Our goal was to have all of our members samples analyzed within 24 hours from the time it reaches the DHI Center" said Bill Hulslander, Director of Northeast DHI Farm Services. Samples are transported to the DHI Center via refrigerated trucks; for most of the NeDHIA service area this occurs three times each week. Getting samples processed sooner means producers get their information sooner, and there is less chance that a sample may spoil. Hulslander adds, "The new (milk lab) schedule is working great for us; we have seen some improvement in overall turnaround time already."

The Milk Check Laboratory analyzes more than 300,000 samples each month. Milk Check Laboratory customers include all Northeast DHI members, several on going research projects, milk handlers, and individual dairies. A VISIT WITH THE POLISH POULTRY INDUSTRY

Dr. Bill Weaver
Prof. & Head
Dept. of
Poultry Science

During an eight-day stay in Poland recently I had an opportunity to visit many different aspects of its poultry industry. I was able to see a number of production units for layers, broilers and turkeys, as well as a hatchery and the processing of eggs, broilers, and turkeys.

My host, Mr. Grzegorz Tumielewicz — his English name is Gregory, and we met at the World's Poultry Congress last fall in New Delhi, India — is the president and owner of a poultry equipment distributorship with four locations in the country.

When considering that Poland was first under German and then Russian occupation for 50 years (1939-1989), it was amazing to see just how rapidly the country has moved toward capitalism in such a short time. Of course one could see the remnants everywhere of the communist era, such as the large and somewhat drab gray office buildings and apartment complexes (they called them flats); the lack of attention given to decorations and artistic design, and the general disregard for personal comforts (hot water on the right or the left side, or possibly no hot water at all, light switches behind doors, etc.). But on the other hand I found the food to be good — plenty of meat, potatoes and cabbage, the stores reasonably well stocked with consumer goods and the people friendly and excited about their future.

However, the move to democracy has not been without its hardships. While unemployment is relatively low, so are wages and likewise the opportunity to purchase the items in the stores, of which many were from the west or the Far East. As one person said, the difference between before 1989 and today is that now we have goods to purchase but little money, while then we had some money but nothing to buy.

Now back to the poultry industry. Broilers and turkeys are grown on chopped straw litter in masonry block houses with concrete floors and with negative pressure ventilation systems. Fans are located in ducts in the ceiling and exhaust through ventilators in the roof. Air inlets are on both sidewalls and are usually not very controllable, and are similar to systems used in Western Europe. (It was surprising to learn just how much trading of technology and goods took place with the West during the 50 years of communism.) Further, as in Western Europe, producers do not control air inlets based on static pressure as is done in the U.S.

The newer broiler houses were equipped with auger-pan feeders (older houses had chain-trough or hanging feeders), radiant gas brooders, and nipple drinkers, just like their counterparts in the U.S. These buildings would house approximately 20,000 birds. However, growers in many instances would grow turkeys in the same house (at a different time of course), by raising the nipple waterers after 5 to 6 weeks and lowering large bell drinkers and placing outside rings on the pan feeders. Feed was manufactured regionally in mills generally operated by interests in Western Europe or the U.S.

Based on bird performance and grower comments, feed appeared to be of good quality but expensive by U.S. standards. Also, ingredients in most instances were being imported. (Northern Poland, which is the more fertile part of the country, is cool and has a shorter growing season than the corn/soybean growing areas of the U.S.)

Layers were housed in multiple bird cages with scrapers lodged between the cage rows and were located over a shallow pit. Cages were generally designed and manufactured in western Europe and in many instances were used cages removed from operations in Germany, France, The Netherlands, etc. In many instances the eggs were processed on the farm and sold in the surrounding region.

The broiler and turkey processing plants were small by U.S. standards and lacked many of the automatic components seen on processing lines in this country. However, in the plants that I visited, they were doing a lot of cutting up and deboning. In two instances — Cedrob S.A., partly owned by Hudson Foods and Indykpol S.A., partly owned by Jerome Foods — I found an array of prepared and fully cooked products mimicking what one would see in this country.

The hatchery we visited was in the last stages of construction and was using technology from western Europe. When completed it will compare favorably with any hatchery anywhere in the world. The building was masonry/tile construction with total stand-by power and refrigerant type air conditioning. The incubation units were manufactured in Belgium and seemed to contain all the latest whistles and bells.

I came away from Poland with a favorable impression of the country and the progress that has been made in only eight years, as they move from a controlled to a free economy. More specifically, I was especially impressed with their poultry industry and the strides that have been made in both production and processing.

The key, as in so many cases, will be marketing. As the doors to the West continue to open and membership in the European Union is realized, one can easily speculate that in the future the poultry industry will flourish in Poland.

Penn State Agronomic Field Diagnostic Clinic Set

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Penn State again will conduct an agronomic field diagnostic clinic this summer at the Agronomy Research Farm near Rocksprings. The clinic will be held on two dates, July 22 and July 24. The same program will be conducted both days.

These field days are designed to improve the agronomic management skills of industry personnel, extension and public agents, crop consultants, and producers. Specialists from Penn State and the agricultural community will provide hands-on diagnostic training in crop production, soil fertility, soil and water conservation, and pest management. Participants choose from a variety of topics and have ample opportunity to diagnose, solve, and discuss crop and soil management problems and situations. In addition to gaining agronomic knowledge, CCA and pesticide applicator license credits can be obtained.

This year's clinic will be similar to past programs. There will be time for discussion and hands-on participation. This year's programs include sessions on growth and development of corn, corn rootworm biology and corn growth, soybean diseases, herbicide & weed/crop screen, assessing soil quality, diagnosing silage and hay making problems, planter adjustment and attachments, and problem weed ID.

You are invited to attend one of the field days on Tuesday, July 22 or Thursday, July 24. The cost of registration is $35 and includes lunch, refreshments, and support materials.

Additional program details and registration information will be available from your local Penn State Cooperative Extension office. Or register by calling Lisa Crytser in the Department of Agronomy at (814) 865-2543. Please register by July 11 so we can estimate our luncheon needs. For program information call Dwight Lingenfelter (814) 865-2242.

This is an opportunity to get into the field with crop production specialists and obtain answers to your questions and get ideas for improved crop management.

Additional information about each topic follows:

•Growth and development of corn — this workshop will discuss some practical methods of assessing corn growth and development that are important to agronomists. The session will review germination and emergence, vegetative growth and development and the early stage of reproduction of corn development. The session will also provide several hands-on exercises where participants will estimate maturity dates and yield losses under several production situations.

•Corn rootworm biology and corn growth — participants will be shown how corn planting date can influence plant injury by corn rootworm larvae. This session will involve a short discussion on corn rootworm biology and corn root growth and development. The discussion will be followed with an active learning session where participants will be invovled in digging corn roots to evaluate degree and morphology of injury and scouting for adult beetles. All activities will be oriented toward showing how corn rootworm biology is influenced by corn plant's stage of development and how this is related to plant injry.

•Soybean disease — this session will discuss the diagnostic techniques used to identify major soybean disease. Live field and potted specimens will be used to demonstrate symptoms and signs of various soybean diseases.

•Herbicide and weed/crop screen — new and commonly used herbicides will be compared in this demonstration. Each product will be applied over various weed and crop species to provide a side-by-side comparison. Herbicide tolerant corn and soybean varieites will be included.

•Assessing soil quality — this session will consider chemical, physical, and biological properties of the soil such as organic matter content, pH, structure, texture, color, etc. Participants will assess various sites having different soil qualities with the aid of a soil quality scorecard. Soil and water management will also be considered.

•Diagnosing silage and hay making problems — common problems related to the forage-making process will be discussed. Topics include problems associated with baling when too wet, molding, the fermentation process, etc. Helpful management tips will be included.

•Planter adjustment and attachments — this session is a follow-up to the Corn Planter Clinic that was held in February. It will highlight important topics such as depth adjustment, maintenance and adjustment of finger units, quick and easy calibration techniques for seed and fertilizer, and planter attachments. It is designed to allow for better understanding of issues discussed at the Planter Clinic and its associated video.

•Problem weed ID — this session will cover weed identification of and management options for problem weeds.

Cattlemen's Field Day July 19

YORK (York Co.) — York County will be the site of the 1997 Cattlemen's Summer Field Day, co-sponsored by the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association, the Pennsylvania Simmental Association, and the South Central Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association in cooperation with Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science.

The event will begin with registration from 8 a.m.-9:30 a.m., tours of area feedlots and cow herds, and the annual PSA Junior Simmental show. There will be a special afternoon program to address important issues affecting the beef industry. Tours of the feedlots and cow herds will be repeated in the afternoon.

There will be a bus tours of three different area beef cattle operations. One herd visited will be South Branch Farms, a registered Angus cow herd which produces not only seed stock but also finishes some of their cattle for a special market. At South Branch, there will be a tour of the cow herd including some of the new practices for fall- and spring-calving management. An additional highlight will be a multi-use open shed for cattle handling, calving, and hay storage, which contributes markedly to the successful calving and efficient winter feeding program for the cow herd. South Branch Farms is owned by Bob and Anne Kinsley and managed by Bob Livingston.

Twin Pine Farm, a vertically integrated Piedmontese-based cow herd, slotted-floor feeding operation and specialty meat market will be visited. Twin Pine Farm is owned and operated by the Bob Ilyes family. A feedlot owned by John Shearer, utilizing by-products from potate processing and predominantly heavyweight Holstein steers will also be on the tour. The entire tour of the beef cattle operations will be repeated in the afternoon.

Lunch will consist of the "Keystone Rib-Eye on a Roll" with other foods also available. There will be several speakers and special attractions for the afternoon program, held in the 4-H Center Auditorium. Dr. H. Louis Moore, extension agricultural economist, will present an update on livestock and grain prices, which should be more accurately predicted by mid-July. Other presentations will be updates on important legislative and public issues affecting the beef cattle business, beef promotion and education programs, and other timely topics. A highlight will be a discussion panel including cattle feeders, registered and commercial cattlemen who will address their plans for the future of their operations.

Commercial exhibitors will be housed in the new York County 4-H Center building, as will the Junior Show Cattle. Individuals interested in attending should contact the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association (814-692-4208), the Pennsylvania Simmental Association (717-225-6279), or the Dept. of Dairy and Animal Science, Penn State (814-863-3659).

Grain Producers To Meet

EDGEWATER, Md. — Dan Manternach, president of Professional Farmers of America (Pro Farmer), will be the keynote speaker at the 20th annual meeting of the Maryland Grain Producers Association, (MGPA).

The meeting, hosted by MGPA and sponsoring agribusinesses for the 300-plus members of the grain industry organization, will be held Thursday, July 24, at the Queen Anne County 4-H Park near Centerville.

Pro Farmer is the leading agricultural news alert and market advisory service in the country with a variety of printed and electronic products serving nearly 25,000 of America's most market-oriented farmers. Manternach joined Pro Farmer 20 years ago and is its president.

His discussion will touch on the commodity markets outlook for 1997-1998, the "mega-trends" shaping the future of agricultural production, and strategic planning for what Manternach calls "the coming boom in agriculture."

Manternach also serves as president of Professional Market Management Inc., which offers professionally managed cash merchandising and risk management using futures and options that follow, to the letter, the marketing strategies of Pro Farmer.

Changing Of Guard At National Dairy Shrine

COLUMBUS, OH — Longtime dairy leader Maurice Core has been named Executive Director of National Dairy Shrine, and the organization's offices have moved to COBA/Select Sires in Columbus, Ohio.

Core retired at the end of 1993 after 37 years with the American Jersey Cattle Association (AJCA). From 1988-1993 he served as Executive Secretary of the AJCA and National All-Jersey, Inc. Twice during the above years he served on the National Dairy Shrine Board of Directors and was president in 1993. As Executive Director, Core is responsible for all day-to-day operations of National Dairy Shrine, reporting to its board of directors.

Core takes over the National Dairy Shrine post from Jim Leuenberger, who served as secretary-treasuer of the organization from 1980-1989 and again since 1992. During these two terms, spanning a total of 14 years, National Dairy Shrine offices were housed with Leuenberger's employer, 21st Century Genetics/Cooperative Resources International (CRI) at Shawano, Wisconsin. Lorie Brunner of Shawano assisted Leuenberger in processing memberships, correspondence and other National Dairy Shrine matters. CRI staff members have been involved with accounting and other support functions for the organization.

"We are grateful to Jim Leuenberger, Lorie Brunner and CRI for their years of service during a time of steady growth and many new projects," said Ron Long, National Dairy Shrine president. "It was time to pass the baton and the Dairy Shrine board of directors is pleased to have someone of Maurice Core's caliber to receive it." Staff at COBA/Select Sires, and Jo Ann Conley in particular, will be working with Core to assure a smooth transition. Jo Ann is the Administrative Assistant for COBA/Select Sires.

The new address and phone for National Dairy Shrine is as follows: 1224 Alton Darby Creek Road, Columbus, Ohio 43228-9792, Phone (614) 878-5333, Fax (614) 870-2622.

National Dairy Shrine, the "Hall of Fame" of the dairy industry, have over 15,000 lifetime members located in all 50 states and in many other countries. Lifetime membership is open to anyone for a one-time fee of only $50.

For information on becoming a member of National Dairy Shrine, contact Maurice Core, Executive Director at (614) 878-5333.

Hatfield Unveils New Carcass Merit Payment Program For Hog Producers

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) - Officials of Hatfield Quality Meats unveiled a new carcass merit payment program that uses information from the new Autofom grading system developed in Denmark. The Autofom is a carcass measuring device utilizing ultrasound and extensive image analysis to objectively predict the contents of a carcass. After extensive research and development trials, Hatfield is ready to put the new device on line and start grade payments to farmers by July 21.

Hatfield President Phil Clemens told producers Tuesday at the Farm and Home Center that the 102 year-old company cannot rest on past success because competitors continuously try to beat down the door. He said that the past company policy of treating producers in a fair and equitable manner would continue.

We want to maintain and apply Christian principles in all our relationships," Clemens said. "This includes our employees, our customers, and our vendors (producers). We want to pay a fair price to you for all the animals you produce. And I believe the new payment system unveiled today will encourage you to be a better producer and produce at optimum levels. If you produce a quality hog, you will get a better return."

In the payment program from Hatfield's techincal services Jeff Arner said the carcass weight range most desirable is 160 pounds to 205 pounds. Light weight carcasses are discounted at a rate of 1.25%. Carcasses weighing between 205 and 230 pounds are discounted 0.5% for each pound. Those above 230 pounds are discounted 35% of the base price.

Included within the most desirable weight range is a premium weight category of 175-185 pounds. Carcasses within this range receive a bonus of $0.35/cwt. The bonus is shown as a positive sort adjustment on the payment sheet.

The base primal percent for the payment system is 55.4.%. The primal percent predicted by the Autofom is the percent of the carcass comprised of trimmed hams, loins, and shoulders. Carcasses with more than 55.4% primal cuts earn premiums; those below are discounted. The premium value is set daily and is based on a five-day rolling average of the quoted market prices of hams, loins, picnic shoulders, and Boston butts. The premium or discount is applied to the calculated pounds above or below the base primal pounds in the carcass. The maximum premium is 4 percent due to diminished use for extremely lean carcasses and potential meat quality problems. Discounts are not limited.

The Autofom predicts the total weight of the individual primal cuts (ham, loin, shoulder, and belly) in the carcass. For carcasses outside the desired weight range of 160-205 with primal cuts of acceptable size, a portion or all of the original sort penalty is reimbursed. The amount returned is based on which primal cuts are of acceptable size. Target primal cut ranges are based on Hatfield's style of fabrication.

A base carcass is defined as a 180 pound carcass with 23 mm of backfat and 55.4% primal cuts.

Producers with questions about the new payment system should contact Hatfield at 215-368-2500.

Two additional meetings were scheduled, one at Weaver Markets at Adamstown later in the week, and another meeting is scheduled for Monday June 30 at Country Fair Restaurant, Myerstown.

Phil Clemens, president and CEO of Hatfield Quality Meats, left, compares ideal primal cuts with Jeff Arner, technical services.

resolve that has long characterized Pennsylvania's farming community. Secretary Hayes is a man of high energy, strict determination, and an unwavering focus."

Gov. Ridge also said Pennsylvania is proud to be part of this nation's brea dbasket and that farming is the backbone of our state economy. That's why the Department of Agriculture is so important.

Hayes, in accepting the compliments, thanked Gov. Ridge for being one of Pennsylvania's most outstanding governors and called it an honor to accept the request to serve in this position.

In reference to the new poultry flock identified with A.I. this week, Hayes said it was a bittersweet moment for the new secretary of agriculture and the governor of Pennsylvania. "For those of us at this ceremony it is the best of times," Hayes said. "For those in the ag industry, who, on a daily basis experience things like A.I., it can sometimes be the worst of times.

"We must face every challenge, use energy and inventive ideas to make the great ag message known around the world," Hayes said. "Pennsylvania agriculture is number one, and it must remain number one." (Addressing the governor, Hayes continued.) "I am committed, Gov. Ridge, along with everyone who is assembled here, to keep agriculture number one."

Immediately following the Hayes ceremony, Samuel A. McCullough took the oath of office for secretary of the Pennsylvania Department of Community and Economic Development.

Performance Economics For Dairying As A Business

DAVE SLUSSER
General Manager

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — What does it cost you to produce 100 pounds of milk? Pa. DHIA would like to help you answer that question.

In fact there are many questions that Pa. DHIA's performance economics can answer for you, and it comes free for the rest of the year.

Just contact your Pa. DHIA technician, or call Pa. DHIA at 1-800-DHI-TEST and we will send the easy to complete entry form. All financial information needed to enter your herd will be held in strictest confidence by Dave Slusser, and no one else will see your reports but you.

The performance economics program tells you the cost to produce 100 pounds of milk, individual cow cost and profit, group cost and profit, lactation groups, BST groups and individuals.

Included are test period profits, rolling 12 months profits, monthly, and yearly projection of cost for your entire heifer program. You will see what it cost you to raise a spring heifer.

With this information that you receive monthly from Pa. DHIA, you can keep up to date on your herd operating cost, make adjustments or changes in your operation to save thousands of dollars.

Farm operating costs vary widely throughout Pennsylvania. Everything from home grown feeds and forages to heifer raising costs vary. Knowing what your costs are as compared to market cost is an absolute in managing a family dairy farm today.

Information gathered from herds on the performance economics program indicates members are making profitable adjustments to their operations.

For example, after learning the cost of raising their own forages some dairymen are buying certain forages rather then raising them, while some are using custom operators rather than owning their own equipment. Certain dairymen are going to more intensive grazing, while others are paying someone else to raise their heifers rather than raising their own.

This program will help you make those decisions. The money you save will be yours to keep. Your farm profit will not depend on milk prices, but on your shrewd management skills.

Most herds that are on performance economics just calculate their home grown feed cost and overhead cost once a year and update annually. Monthly, they report their purchase feed prices and their milk price to their Pa. DHIA technicians.

If you enroll now, the original set-up is free, and annual update will be $15 per year or whenever you update. A custom report is developed for each farm that suites their operation and heifer program.

percent of its business inn Pennsylvania, but ships product to Maryland, Virginia, Washington, D.C., Delaware, New York, the Carolinas, Florida, and Michigan.

The company relies on various sources for the raw product. They buy from Hatfield, Taylor, IBP, ConAgra, Midwest vendors, and others.

In 1994, a 20,000-square foot warehouse was constructed next to the headquarters, which houses a little more than a million pounds of product at a two-week inventory. The inventory is kept at 28 degrees in storage.

Customer satisfaction, finding ways to "keep the customer happy," remain key to the success of the company, according to Weise. Recently a site for new warehouse space was purchased next door to the existing warehouse. Weise noted that renovations were under way to provide the future site of the company's ham processing operations.

Before the tour began, Weise conducted a company survey of the employees at the plant and the school districts in which they live. He said that 32 percent of Berks Packing employees have students enrolled in the Reading School District.

While the employees are as varied as the school systems in which they live, Weise told the superintendents that what the students need to learn today is "manufacturing expertise" and to understand what is going on in an increasingly global economy.

Weise asked one of the computer engineers at the plant what students should learn. The answer? How to become efficient at learning and operating software that will provide information about all aspects of a plant's operation at the "fingertips." Students should be better prepared for quality and manufacturing issues and learn how food is processed.

Sue Kreiser, the plant's quality control supervisor, provided an overview of food safety sampling. She indicated the plant has never had to do a recall under USDA directives for pathogens in any Berks Packing product. The quality control department focuses on Salmonella and listeria sampling of employees (hands) and all equipment in the building on a regular basis.

Weise indicated that in 1991, Berks Packing become one of nine pilot plants in the U.S. (out of 300) for the Hazards Analysis Critical Control Points (HACCP) initiative. HACCP, begun by NASA to ensure the safety of astronauts' food, identifies "control points" along the way and provides methods to ensure the safety of food through processing. Implementation of HACCP at Berks Packing began in January this year and will be completely in place by next year.

On the tour, members were shown the two types of raw product received by the plant. One type is the whole muscle side (ham and roast beef). The other is sausage, or emulsion-type product, and how that is processed.

Depending on the type of frankfurter made, which is regulated by percentage of fat, 2,000 pounds of the raw product, made up of beef or swine shoulder or ribs, is kept in a cardboard container. The material is loaded into steel "urns" which blend the product. Salt, sugar, spices, and water are added, and about 1,600 pounds of material remains to be extruded. Before extrusion, the quality control department checks for fat, meat, and other items.

The product is loaded to a vat which moves the material through a pipe, or extruder, where it is wrapped in plastic and twined to a certain length. The strings of frankfurters are hoisted onto racks, which are then placed in an oven, where they are cooked to an internal temperature of 150 degrees for a specified length of time. The product, when removed, is flash-cooled to 36 degrees. The strings are then taken through a machine which extracts the plastic. The finished frankfurters are then conveyed to an assembly line where they are shrink-wrapped into groups and packaged for sale.

Hams are injected with spices, sugar, and other items and "massaged" — placed in a machine where they are rolled for 3-4 hours. Beef is prepared similarly, but not "massaged" as long.

The tour included preparation of other items, including pepper hams, smoked sausage, and other items.

One control check involves the use of metal detectors in the packaging of product, to further ensure product quality.

The key to ensuring that hot dogs remain fresh for four months home refrigeration, according to Weise, is quick cool down after they are cooked. The key is to get rid of the lag time, when potential for degradation can take place after cooking, according to Kreiser.

Kreiser said the key is to "always give the consumer a consistent product." After the tour, the group went to visit various commercial farms. On one tour, Lee Fredericks, superintendent of the Wilson School District, along with Scott Hauseman, banking officer in the agrifinance department of CoreStates Bank, visited the farm operated by Tom Derr on Shearer's Road in Sinking Springs.

(Turn to Page A37)

An 18-member tour group, comprised of school superintendents from Reading, Oley Valley, Hamburg, Wilson, Exeter, Governor Mifflin, and other districts throughout Berks County — in addition to several agri-industry representatives — learned what happens to beef and swine when it leaves the farm. First row, from left, Sue Kreiser, quality control supervisor and tour guide; Anita Walter; and Ernie Heckman. Second row, from left, Bill Angstadt, John DiNunzio, Jack Harf, Bill Harst, and Fern Kulp. Third row, Wayne Lesher, Bob Hohl, Charles Miller, Jeffrey Zackon and John J. Hvizda. Fourth row, Clyde Myers, Carl Brown, Tony Grimm, Dave Robbins, and Jim Gilmartin.

After the tour, the group went to visit various commercial farms. On one tour, Lee Fredericks, superintendent of the Wilson School District, center, along with Scott Hauseman, banking officer in the agrifinance department of CoreStates Bank, left, visited the farm operated by Tom Derr on Shearer's Road in Sinking Springs.

Derr leases the farm to Luke Sensenig, near Adamstown. The farm houses more than 700 hogs.

Derr, who has operated Westlawn Beverage in Sinking Springs for 45 years, has been raising hogs more than 20 years. Derr built a 50-foot by 108-foot side-ventilated house with automatic feeders in 1972 to house about 5,000 hogs.

Derr said he began his operation with "two pigs for his kids," which quickly grew in size. He said he cared for the hogs on mornings and evenings away from the beverage business, including working weekends, to build the hog enterprise.

Derr, who maintains 30 acres at the farm (15 acres in grassland and the remaining in woodland), remains active in contract farming. He helps finance swine growers on aspects of operations often not covered by banks. "We do the financing that the bank doesn't take the risks on," he said.

Derr told members of the tour group that, these days, it would be difficult for growers to simply start out with a couple of hogs and hope to build into a large commercial operation.

"So many people out there are just so anti-(anything)," he said. "People out there sometimes try their best to destroy the industry. The pork industry — we're the next target.

"Expansion can't come around so fast — there are so many environmentalists out there now," he said. When he constructed the swine facility 25 years ago, it was installed on the top of a hill, away from any development. Derr said if he did the same today, "everybody would be at the township meeting," questioning the need and providing additional challenges to farming.

Educators on the tour and their school districts included Dr. John DiNunzio, Antietam; Dr. William A. Harst, Exeter; Dr. Jack R. Harf, Governor Mifflin; Dr. Charles L. Miller, Hamburg; and Jeffrey F. Zackon, Oley Valley.

Others and their districts included James A. Gilmartin, Schuylkill Valley; David H. Robbins, Tulpehocken; Dr. Lee T. Fredericks, Wilson; Dr. Charles R. Walker, Wyomissing; and Dr. K. Robert Hohl, Berks Career and Technology Center.

Another Flock In Quarantine

been voluntary. As of press deadline Friday morning, there had been no agreement with the owner of the flock to depopulate. However, the state's Poultry Health Advisory Committee has recommended the birds be destroyed, noted Van Buskirk.

The cause of the appearance of A.I. in yet another flock in the county was unknown. Biosecurity has been enforced within the quarantine area and is working. But state poultry experts did indicate, however, that the close proximity of the buildings to the original outbreak may play a great role in disease transmission. In the case of nearby outbreaks, wind currents and wild fowl could end up being the culprits.

There have been no other suspect flocks identified as of Friday morning, according to Buskirk. However, the confirmation of yet another flock with A.I. is "resetting the clock" on the expected timeframe, if officials decide to end the quarantine. It could be until mid-August or even into September when the quarantine could be lifted.

Buskirk said on Wednesday morning that the spread of the virus bears similarity with the outbreak in the summer of 1983, when six flocks were identified in June and six in July. The weather patterns were also similar.

Commercial growers still can do more to promote biosecurity. Biosecurity is, by far, the most important thing, noted Buskirk.

The virus continues to spread to farms "in spite of the hot temperatures," said Buskirk, which this week soared well into the 90s.

Eight flocks in Lancaster County have now been identified positive for the virus. Previously, two flocks in Lebanon County were affected. The total number of birds infected for the two counties is more than 1 million.

The 75-square-mile quarantine zone went into effect May 16. The quarantine, for all fowl, will remain in effect indefinitely.

Last week Gov. Tom Ridge signed into a law a bill to appropriate $5 million to provide financial assistance to Lancaster and Lebanon county poultry producers affected by the virus. Most of the money will be used to reimburse poultry owners for one-third the value of the destroyed flocks. Funds also will be available to pay for the cleaning and sanitizing of the houses, for the disposal of infected birds, and for other preventative and control measures.

Also, consideration has been give to provide a vaccine to poultry to protect them from A.I., but the state does not have authority from USDA to use the vaccine at this time, according to Van Buskirk.

Dairy Management

order, because we want to have enough roughage and long fiber to keep dairy animals healthy and prevent rumen acidosis, laminitis and low milk fat! How much fiber then?

Research, including here at the University of Delaware, has shown that a minimum of 21 percent acid detergent and 30 percent neutral detergent fiber is needed per ration dry matter. It also has been shown that, within a certain range and limits, the more neutral detergent fiber in a ration, the more dairy animals chew and ruminate and salivate their feed, resulting in a less acidic rumen and a better milk-fat level.

When is the best time to cut your hay? The answer is when you can make the most money from either high fiber or highly digestible nutrient contents in your hay.

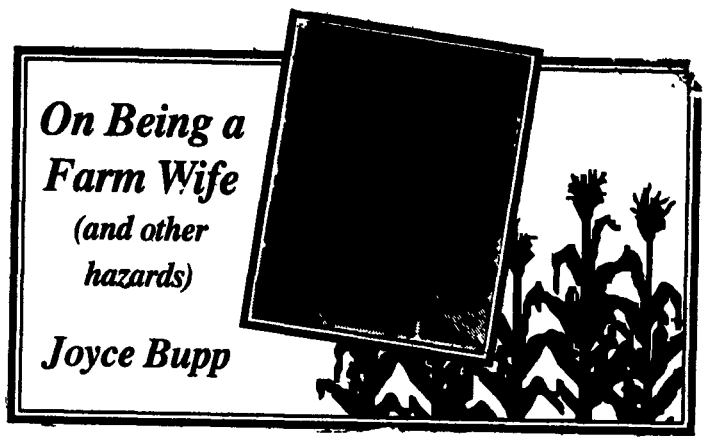
CARTER 1997



Where was that calf?

Earlier in the day, a calf had been spotted in the pasture where the herd was grazing. "Close springers," — animals that are due to calve within a week or two — are moved into the production herd ahead of calving to gradually adjust their systems to the rations fed the milking cows. As we move the group through the twice-daily milking routine, we can keep watch over our mothers-to-be.

If one of these "springers" is seen starting to calve, we may promptly move her to a calving pen where we can help more readily if needed, especially for heifers calving their first time. During warm summer weather, however, a clean, dry corner of the pasture is the healthiest and most natural of maternity areas. The only animals due in recent weeks were older, mature cows, which usually calve fairly easily. And this calf had been spotted up and about, so the pasture birth had apparently been a routine one overnight.

Now, where was that calf?

At milking time, there was no calf in sight. We suspected the mother-to-be Suki, a second-calver due to deliver that day. But, she had apparently remained in the grazing area with other springers and left her baby somewhere secreted away.

The Farmer decided an inspection tour of the meadow was in order and departed on the three-wheeler.

We were nearly finished milking before he returned. Empty-handed. Or empty-motorcycled.

He confirmed that it was indeed Suki that had delivered a calf. He also confirmed that he had no clue about where the calf was at the moment.

Baby calves are born — some of them anyway — with an instinct to hide. They'll slip away if given the slightest opportunity, seek out a tall patch of grass or cluster of weeds or the center of your bed of blooming daylilies next to the barn, curl up in a tight little ball and go fast asleep. And stay there for hours if not disturbed.

Probably goes back to the days when baby calves stayed put or were gobbled up as a snack by a hungry Tyranasaurus Rex or Stegasauraus or whatever kind of dinosaur enjoyed such goodies.

A few years ago, a newborn bull calf thus escaped for us. It was spotted trotting out the road and up over the bank into a waist-high cornfield, then disappeared. Though we searched several times, the napping baby bull eluded us.

He found us, however, about 3 a.m. the next morning, when his tummy told him to go hunt up mamma. When he came looking and didn't immediately find her, he stood — literally — under our open bedroom window, bawling at the top of his lungs. Talk about your rude awakening. When it became apparent the calf had no plans to go back to snoozing under a cornstalk, The Farmer arose, deposited the calf in a pen (amidst loud bawling protests) and returned to another hour or two of quieter shuteye. I don't recall that he took time to sing the little fellow a lullaby.

At dusk, with milking and feeding chores finally complete, I parked at the back porch picnic table for a snack. It's my favorite time of day, when quiet settles over the farm, the geese wander up toward the smaller pond in expectation of a handout, and the heifer herd meanders up from the meadow for a late supper of silage.

Then, behind the bred heifers slowly making their way up from the meadow, I noticed a strange movement in the mist settling over the valley. Turned out to be The Farmer on the three-wheeler, making his third or fourth calf-search trip, moving in super-slow gear. And, by gosh, just ahead of the bike trotted a small black-and-white body.

There was that calf!

Later, he related how, after repeated trips around the pasture fencerows and clusters of bushes, he had finally spotted the elusive newborn. For its hiding spot, the calf had worked its way deep under an overhanging multiflora rose bush near the creek and made itself almost invisible. When he reunited the calf — a heifer — with mother Suki, the baby promptly claimed the opportunity to snatch a snack, a sure sign of a bouncy, healthy, baby bovine.

Having grown accustomed to expecting the unexpected from our infant Holsteins, it's always nice to have an all's-well-that-ends-well episode.

Guess the calf was just celebrating its version of a summertime tradition.

Independence Day.

Lower Blood Pressure With Milk

COLUMBUS, Ohio — A study published in the April 17 issue of the New England Journal of Medicine finds a diet that included about three servings of low-fat dairy products and eight to 10 servings of fruits and vegetables helped lower blood pressure twice as much as a diet rich in only fruits and vegetables.

The new study, Dietary Approaches to Stop Hypertension (DASH), compared the effects of three different diets: A control diet, a diet that emphasized fruits and vegetables and a combination diet, which included low fat dairy products, fruits and vegetables and was low in fat. The combination diet, that added dairy foods, was more effective in lowering blood pressure than the diet that emphasized fruits and vegetables alone.

The study, funded by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute and the National Center for Research Resources of the National Institutes of Health, found a significant and immediate fall in blood pressure (within two weeks) that was maintained when people followed the special diet for eight weeks. For those with mild (stage I) hypertension, the diet rich in low fat dairy products, fruits and vegetables produced blood pressure reductions similar to those typically seen in single drug treatment for stage I high blood pressure.

This study provides the most compelling evidence to date that the food we eat, in particular skim milk and other low fat dairy products, can help us to reduce the risk of hypertension. "With 50 million Americans having hypertension and billions of dollars spent each year on blood pressure medications, these findings have important public health implications, states Ann Marie Krautheim, RD, LD, director of consumer and scientific affairs for the American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East. "This study provides further evidence that low fat dairy foods can and should be a part of a heart healthy diet."

ADADC Mid East is a farmer-funded organization that implements marketing, advertising, nutrition education and promotion on behalf of dairy farmers in Ohio, West Virginia and western Pennsylvania.

CENTER NEWARK, Del. — One of the most important tools of the apiologist is communication. Bees communicate with each other using sounds, peromones, touch, and dance language. Honey bees communicate with beekeepers and at another level, communication between beekeepers allows implementation of new ideas into beekeeping techniques.

Honey been science and beekeeping applications will be taught that the Eastern Apicultural Society Conference at the University of Delaware, Clayton Hall Conference Center, on Aug. 13-15.

Speakers, practical workshops, honey product show, and more will be featured at the conference. Two days before the show on Aug. 11-13, a short course will be taught at the college. The short course will provide the latest information on the bee industry and hands-on-experience in the University of Delaware Apiary.

Separate registration for the short course and meeting are required. For more information, contact John Tullock at P.O. Box 473 Odessa, Del. 19730.

Music plays a large role in the Ranck family. Elisa is accomplished on the piano and harp. She, and Aaron, who plays the violin, provide music for weddings and special programs.

Cows, Crops, Music, Guests Thrive At Verdant View

LOU ANN GOOD

PARADISE (Lancaster Co.) — Tourists hoping for a little bit of Paradise often stop by Verdant View Farm. Urban visitors are mesmerized by the cows that graze in the meadow and meander at will across the farm lane toward the barn.

But that tranquil setting conceals the hustling needed to keep life on keel for Don and Virginia Ranck and family.

There are cows to milk, fields to plow, roadside produce to plant, beds to be changed, and breakfast to be cooked for as many as 36 guests at the family's bed and breakfast.

That's only the beginning for this family who is involved in everything from music to politics.

Perhaps it's all this on-farm activity that keeps guests returning year after year to Verdant View Farm in the 21 years of which the bed and breakfast has been operating.

"Some bed and breakfasts have period furniture and don't want children, but we welcome them here," said Virginia or Ginny as she prefers to be called.

"Here everyone gets a chance to milk a cow, feed a calf, and fish in the pond," said 15-year-old Elisa, who despite a typical teen-ager's schedule takes the time to visit with guests.

Seventeen-year-old Aaron also lives at home. Another daughter Heather is a college senior, and a son Eldon has a 5-year-old daughter.

Dairy promotion is part of the Ranck family. Here Ginny and daughter Elisa, who served as a Lancaster County Dairy Ambassador this past year, pause for a picture during the recent county pageant.

The Ranck family takes a break from chores at Verdant View Farm. Still at home with parents Don and Ginny Ranck are Aaron, 17, and Elisa, 15. The Rancks also have two adult children who no longer live at home.

While the whole family works together to do whatever needs to be done, a major shifting in responsibilities has taken place in the recent months.

Don has been diagnosed with advanced osteoarthritis that requires a bilateral hip replacement. The pain limits his movement. He is no longer able to milk cows regularly and is limited on other work required to work the 122-acre farm. More disconcerting is doctors' prognosis that even with hip replacements, he will not be able to farm again.

"To give up the life I love is not something I consider acceptable," Don said.

To that end, Don researches the Internet, looking for the latest medical research on the disease and for recent developments in hip replacements.

Not pleased that hip replacements wear out within five years with normal farming activity, Don designed and received a provisional patent for one that he thinks will be a great improvement.

"All farmers know that you need zerk fitting on a hip," Don joked. The current hip replacements wear out quickly because metal rubs against plastic with inadequate lubrication.

A 22 health professional group called MedVention met with Don this week to discuss the merits and demerits of his design.

Because Don cannot wait years to receive the hip replacements, he is hoping to raise funds either to have the project engineered at his cost or licensed by one of the many hip prosthesis manufacturing companies.

There are hurdles to cross in engineering a new design but Don intends to use only proven biocompatible materials.

"I want to be the third person to receive it. Let the surgeon practice on the first two patients and work out any kinks," Don said with a laugh.

While awaiting Don's eventual hip replacements, the Rancks have had to make adjustments to the workload. They have reduced the herd size to 40 milking cows. Although Ginny had always helped with milking, the primary responsibility is now hers.

Don does what he can. He moves slowly and painfully to feed cows and breed them. This spring, preparing the ground for planting was curtailed somewhat because he was unable to pick up heavy objects. Although he does some tractor work, some of the ground is being farmed by neighboring farmers. Don is now the one who more frequently answers the phone and makes reservations for guests.

Last year, the Rancks increased their Bed and Breakfast capacity. They now have nine rooms available for overnight stays. What was known as the tenant house on the farm has been renovated into a bed and breakfast, which is called "The Little White House by the Side of the Road. With that whole house and the additional bedrooms in the Rancks' home, as many as 36 persons can stay overnight.

Two Amish ladies help with the cleaning, laundry, and breakfast duties required with a bed and breakfast. Ginny writes out a weekly breakfast menu that tries to incorporate in-season produce, meat, and milk from the farm.

On the menu for the week that the Rancks were interviewed for this story were such specialties as rhubarb sauce, veal sausage, eggs, chocolate shoo-fly pie, corned beef, eggs and cheese, baked oatmeal with red raspberry sauce, baked apples, strawberry/rhubarb pie, and lemon sponge pie.

HOMESTEAD NOTES

Cows, Crops, Music, Guests

"At first I was hesitant to serve scrapple, thinking that only people who grew up eating it would like it. But now I serve it regularly because guests love it," Ginny said.

Breakfast is served at 8:30 a.m. Guests in the tenant house return to the farmhouse for the family-style breakfast. Depending on the number of guests, breakfast is served in shifts.

Both Ginny and Don eat with guests, who are often curious about farming. On off-school days, the children also join the breakfast table.

Unlike some Bed and Breakfast operations, the Rancks cater to children and to international guests.

Of special interest this season are the cygnets and swans on the pond.

"Our five-year-old granddaughter is as good a tour guide as any of us," Don said of her ability to show guests around.

In keeping with a 21-year tradition, the family has been holding a square dance in the second floor of the barn every summer. Hay tunnels are arranged for children. About 150-250 guests attend the intergenerational event.

Guests also often attend the Witmer Heights First Deaf Mennonite Church, where Don and Ginny are youth advisers.

Music plays a large role in the Ranck family. Elisa is accomplished on the piano and harp. She, and Aaron, who plays the violin, provide music for weddings and special programs. At school, she sings in the chorus and with the Chamber Singers.

Elisa just completed a year as a Lancaster County Dairy Ambassador. Because the county had no dairy princess this past year, Elisa and three other girls had served as dairy ambassadors by doing the duties normally required of a dairy princess. Although she is too young to run for dairy princess (the required age is 16), Elisa is considering it part of her future plans.

Elisa, who will be a sophormore at Pequea Valley High School, will serve another year as president of her class. She is co-captain of the junior varsity soccer team, FFA member, and began a Bible Club at school. Elisa is a member of the 4-H Exchange Club through which she will visit California this summer. She has also won a trip in 4-H talent competition to the National Association of County Agriculture Agents annual meeting to be held in Vermont this year. And, she will be accompanying youth members of her church to the National Mennonite Youth Conference to be held in Florida this summer.

Despite her many school, church, and community activities, Elisa feeds the calves on the farm every morning and evening and helps with the bed and breakfast guests. Last summer, and again this summer, Elisa plans to work at the Amazing Maize Maze, a cornfield maze that attracts thousands of visitors.

Aaron's schedule is just as busy. He will be a senior next year and is president elect of the FFA. He is on the state nominating committee and plans to run for state office. He will travel to Pittsburgh for the National Institute On Cooperative Education (NICE) leadership conference, for which he had won a free trip to St. Louis last year.

It's Aaron's third year with the Chamber Singers. He is on the wrestling team.

Politics fascinate him. He is a volunteer for the Lancaster County Republicans and for the Young Republicans of Lancaster. Recently Aaron will spend a day shadowing Senator Noah Wenger. After graduation, Aaron is considering studying political science at an East coast college.

When the Rancks first married, they spent five years in Brazil with the Mennonite Central Committee. Don worked in agricultural development, teaching and administration, and Ginny, an LPN, worked with public health education and administration.

Their interest in maintaining international friendships continue. In fact, a young man named Bruno Lima from Brazil, who wanted to improve his English, is living with the Rancks for one year. Since Don is temporarily handicapped, Bruno's help has been beneficial.

The Rancks plant about four acres of sweet corn, attempting to provide corn at the very beginning and the end of the season.

"I always say that mothering, milking, and music is my life," Ginny said. But she is also a board member for the Lancaster County Extension Board and spouse coordinator for the Atlantic Dairy Cooperative annual meeting. Both spouses serve as youth advisers and Sunday School teachers at church. Don is also on the Ranck Reunion Board.

"My stress manager is belonging to the Pequea Valley Card Club," Ginny said of the few moments of relaxation available from her busy schedule.

Don is a Pennsylvania Farm Bureau member and served as president for two terms. He also served nine years on the Paradise Zoning and Hearing Board and seven years on the township planning commission.

"To give up the life I love is not something I consider acceptable," Don said. On the Internet, Don searches for information on the latest medical research on advanced osteoarthritis and hip replacements.

Final Installment Of Dairy Recipe Entries

Today marks this year's final installment of entries from Lancaster Farming's Cow Mania Recipe Drawing. While it's too late to submit a recipe for the contest, enjoyment from trying the many recipes printed during the month of June will go on and on.

Thanks to the many readers who make June Dairy Month special by taking the time to share your favorite dairy recipe and a bit about your life.

Look for a listing of the prize winners in a separate article with a picture of Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Angela Werley drawing the winning entries. Sorry that each of you didn't win a prize, but your recipe is certain to be a "winner" in many families who clip the recipes and try them for many years.

Don't forget to continue to send recipes requested each week under "Recipe Topics" and for "Cook's Question." These are ongoing needs for recipes. We are happy to print your recipes but please make sure you send them in time to be printed.

Happy cooking!

MOTHER'S PUMPKIN PIE

3½ cups mashed cooked pumpkin
2½ cups sugar
¾ cup flour
2 teaspoons cinnamon
½ teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoons vanilla
6 cups milk
6 eggs, separated
4 9-inch unbaked pie shells

Mix pumpkin, sugar, flour, and spices together in large mixing bowl. Add beaten egg yolks, milk, and vanilla. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into pie shells. Bake 10 minutes at 425 degrees, then at 350 degrees until set; about 50 minutes.

This is a recipe my mother made lots of to sell. It is our favorite pumpkin pie and whenever I serve it to guests, someone comments on the good creamy smooth texture. My husband and I and five children raise turkeys in Perry County and really enjoy country living and trying all the good recipes in Lancaster Farming.

GERMAN PIZZA

1 pound ground beef
½ medium onion
½ green pepper, diced
1½ teaspoon salt, divided
½ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons butter
6 medium potatoes, peeled and finely shredded
3 eggs, beaten
½ cup milk
2 cups shredded mozarella or cheddar cheese

In a 12-inch stove-top or electric skillet, over medium heat brown beef with onion, green pepper, ½ teaspoon salt, and pepper. Remove meat mixture from skillet and drain fat. Reduce heat to low, melt butter; spread potatoes over butter, sprinkle with remaining salt, top with beef mixture; combine eggs and milk; pour over all. Cook, covered, until potatoes are tender, about 30 minutes. Top with cheese, cover and let set until cheese is melted, about 5 minutes. Cut into wedges or squares and serve. Yield: 4-6 servings.

We really love this recipe. It's almost as good as the regular pizza.

We live on a dairy farm. We have 34 cows. We also have heifers, horses, cats, and chickens. So there's always something to work at.

DELI-STYLE RICE PUDDING

½ cup rice, uncooked
1½ cups water
Pinch salt
1½ teaspoons butter

Bring to a boil and cook 14 minutes without stirring on medium-low heat. Keep covered while cooking.

Remove from heat and let stand 10 minutes with lid on.

Add:
4 cups milk
½ cup sugar

Cook 30 minutes or longer, stirring occasionally. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla.

My mother-in-law gave me this recipe 12 years ago. It makes a pudding similar to the rice pudding sold at deli counters. I like to cook the pudding much longer than 30 minutes. Cooked on low heat, it will get as thick as you want it to be.

COUNTRY CINNAMON ROLLS

1 cup heavy cream (no substitutes)
1 cup packed brown sugar
Chopped walnuts or pecans optional
1 package active dry yeast
1 cup warm water
3-4 cups all-purpose flour, divided
¾ cup sugar, divided
1 teaspoon salt
10 tablespoons butter, divided
1 egg
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon

Combine cream, brown sugar, and nuts. Sprinkle into an ungreased 9x13x2-inch baking pan. Set aside. In a mixing bowl, dissolve yeast in water; let stand 5 minutes. Add 1½ cups flour, ¼ cup sugar, salt, 2 tablespoons butter, and egg; beat for 3 minutes. Stir in enough remaining flour to form a soft dough. On a lightly-floured surface, knead dough for one minute. Roll out to two 15x7-inch rectangle. Soften remaining butter; spread over dough. Sprinkle with cinnamon and remaining sugar. Roll up, beginning with long side, cut into 16-20 rolls. Place rolls, cut side down, in baking pan. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled, about 35-45 minutes. Bake at 400 degrees for 20-25 minutes. Cool for 12 minutes and invert pan. Yield: 16-20 servings.

We live on a dairy farm just outside Millmont. There are nine children in our family and we all love these rolls, especially while they are still warm.

Somerset Dairy Princess Wraps Up Successful Year

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — Amanda Meier, the Somerset County Dairy Princess, with mere hours left before her sparkling crown is passed to a new dairy industry representative, advises her successor to enjoy her reign and, also, to encourage herself throughout the year.

"Keep your spirits up." She suggests to the unknown young woman to be crowned the night of June 28.

Amanda knows well enough the value of self-encouragement because the highs and lows that she, herself experienced taught her quite well its importance.

Like most dairy princesses, she found the awestruck children adorable when they watched her dairy magic act and listened to her words about dairy products being so good for them.

"They really thought it was neat that there was this princess doing this magic act," Amanda Said.

Into her upside down top hat went a candy bar, out came string cheese; in went potato chips, out came ice cream; in went soda, out came milk.

The fascinated children were enthralled and eager to listen to whatever the princess said about dairy nutrition.

It's a small wonder then, that moments spent with youngsters this past year were the high points for Amanda, 17, the eldest of the five chidren of Andy and Susan Meier.

Unexpected for the princess, however, was to learn the family would be digging up their Somerset County roots to move lock, stock, and barrel, to a state further south.

Her dad had accepted a new position and the family farm had to be sold.

"It was a devastating thing," the Somerset Area High School senior said about her initial reaction last January.

Her commitment to the local dairy industry was firm, but inside, she struggled. Her spirits seemed devoid of enthusiasm, at first. But she bounced back.

"It was really hard to talk about promoting dairy products," she said.

At evening milking time, when no engagements called, Amanda was expected to help milk the mixed herd of 100 head of cows which, more recently, were sold.

"I complained about milking when I had to do it," she admitted, "but know I miss it like crazy."

Despite the temporary upheaval — her dad departing in March for Goldsboro, N.C. to manage a research farm for North Carolina State University; the farm's big equipment sale; moving in with George and Bonnie Baer, her maternal grandparents (who live a couple hills and curves yonder) — Amanda made at least one firm decision. She would stay in Pennsylvania and complete her education at the local school.

Meanwhile, her mother Susan, and the other kids — Sarah, 13; Vickie, 11; Andy, 8; and Jeff, 6, are also staying with the Baer grandparents until the upcoming dairy princess pageant takes place. Then, they too, will depart for North Carolina to be with the head of the Meier family.

Until then, the summer weather will see countless popsicles disappearing around the area of Grammy Baer's front porch swing, but only because they are so refreshing and, because being sticky is so much fun as kids well know.

As long as they don't threaten some of the family heirlooms, Mrs. Baer will cope with the popsicle scenario.

It is milk jars that she concerns herself with. Gallon glass jugs from the old I.X.L. Dairy in Friedens that her father — Amanda's great-grandfather — Ross Pile, founded.

The I.X.L. Dairy no longer exists, which is reason enough for Pile's descendants to so cherish the unique jars.

Making 120 appearances over the past year certainly taught Amanda how to prioitize a hectic schedule.

"I've had to make a lot of sacrifices as far as 4-H and FFA, but I think it was worth it," she observed.

"Besides meeting thousands of people, I've made a lot of new friends," she added, tossing out more advice for her successor: "Be prepared for a very, very busy, but a very rewarding year."

Looking ahead, however, Amanda is anxious to continue playing her bass clarinet in the marching band, concert band, and school orchestra; and to enjoy the concerts and festivals they participate in.

Upon completion of college, Amanda hopes to land a job quickly after having taken a double major in music performance and secondary education, she said.

Music is in her heart, but realistically, she knows that performing publicly could take time after college. So she hopes a preparedness to teach will back her up.

She is excited about the traditional family outing set for July in Bluestone State Park, W. Va., a place where the relatives get together for a week of fun.

Amanda enjoys being with her brothers and sisters.

Huntingdon County Holds Dairy Princess Pageant

GAIL STROCK

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — Huntingdon County's new dairy princess received a warm welcome the beginning of June at the Southern Huntingdon High School. Amber Lemin, the only contestant, appeared with the reigning dairy princess Emily Metz and the dairy princess court.

Amber Lemin is the 16-year-old daughter of Pat and Cindy Lemin of James Creek. Her fifth year in the Dairy Princess program, Amber helps with chores and milking on the home dairy farm; enjoys showing dairy cows through 4-H; and is active in the school bands, hand bell choir, chorus, Ski Club, Drama Club, SADD, Student Council, National Honor Society, the National Jersey Association, the Junior Holstein Association and many other organizations.

Amber will enter 11th grade at the Tussey Mountain High School and has two brothers, Matthew and Gregory, and a sister Stacy.

During the pageant, Amber's speech centered on the benefits of milk products in preventing osteoporosis and how it is never too late to reduce the risk. In her skit, Amber chose volunteers from the audience to taste test low-fat and whole milk products.

As part of her farewell speech, Emily Metz presented a small gift to each girl in her court and thanked them for their help throughout the year. During her reign, Emily was chosen as one of the seven finalists at the state pageant; she earned top promoter, statewide, during her first four months; and she traveled more than 5,000 miles within Huntingdon County and over 1,000 miles within Pennsylvania to promote dairy products.

4-H Camp Spells Fun For Kids

JINNY WILT
York/Adams Co.
Correspondent

FAIRFIELD (Adams Co.) — Nestled in the woods of Camp Eder near Fairfield in Adams County about 60 youngsters set about June 10-13 developing self esteem and learning responsibility — and just plain having fun — as part of the Adams/Franklin 4-H Camp.

Clayton Wood, 9, of Littlestown, in Adams County, came to camp "to have fun and meet new kids." He was enjoying hikes along Middle Creek, which cuts a swath through the camp, and through the 155 acres of woodlands that makes up the facility.

For Clayton being outdoors was an enjoyable part of camp.

Andrew Sponseller, 13, of Hanover, found the craft projects to her liking. A member of the Adams County Horse 4-H group, Andrew said she was "meeting a lot of nice people and enjoying the overall camping experience."

Joel Gilbert, 9, of York Springs, a member of the Adams County 4-H Sheep Club, was at 4-H Camp for the second year. 4-H Camp is designed for 8-13-year-olds.

He, too, enjoyed the craft projects, but particularly liked the programs that taught the youngsters how to take care of the Earth.

For Kristi Cunningham, 15, of Arendtsville, her first year as a teen counselor was exciting. "I have a good group of kids," she said of the 15 youth she was responsible for. "I take them from station to station (projects) and must make sure there are always 15 of them."

She has been coming to 4-H Camp since she was 8 years old and said she had taken all the training necessary to become a teen counselor including a leadership conference.

"Ii will come back again next year," she said with enthusiasm.

Other teen counselors included Brad Black, Aspers; Jason Keller, Zeb Eckert, Nichole Bodenberg, and Keith Livelsberger, all of Gettysburg; Kelly Rockafellow and Amber Day, both of Littlestown; Chad Funt, Arendtsville; and Tiffany Staub, McSherrystown.

Five 4-H teens were involved in the Counselors In Training program conducted as part of camp. The training provides the necessary information for teens to become counselors for 4-H Day Camp, and Overnight Camp next year.

CIT's were Rachel Fox and Janel Keller, both of Gettysburg; Rebecca Bolt, Littlestown; and Wade Black and John Myers, both of Aspers.

Not only were the youngsters enjoying the camp, Dan Hoffman of Gettysburg, who has spent the past 25 years volunteering time to youngsters' projects, could only smile when he talked about his part in 4-H Camp.

Hoffman who rented his farm when he decided to retire could be found at camp teaching youngsters about safety when shooting a gun or helping with woodworking projects.

He is the father-in-law of assistant Secretary of Agriculture Russell Redding, and his daughter, Nina Redding, is Family Living Agent for Adams County's Extension Office.

Talking of teaching the youngsters shooting and safety.

Hoffman said, "When they are only 8 or 9 and you get them to hit the target and they look up at you knowing they did a good thing, it melts your heart."

The 4-H Camp is conducted by Adams-Franklin County Extension staff and volunteer 4-H leaders Sharon Baker of Littlestown and Hoffman.

Workshops included wildlife, crafts, recreational skills and shooting sports. Special workshops were held on ag safety, orienteering, cake decorating and community service.

Darlene M. Resh, Adams County Extension Program/4-H, said the camp program is designed to help develop self-esteem and responsibility and provide positive role models for the campers. The campers will make friends from across Adams and Franklin counties, learn new skills and have a fun experience.

Why do roosters crow in the morning?
Roosters don't crow at dawn to be noisy or annoying. They're protecting their turf!
Before chickens were domesticated, a rooster — that's a male chicken — used to travel with a group of female chickens. The group claimed a particular area as theirs; they raised their families and hunted for food in this territory. The rooster took it upon himself to crow out to any passing birds that this is their spot.
Song birds do the same thing. It's still pretty dim and cold at dawn, even though the sun is rising. Dim light means birds can't find food very well. On top of that, insects — the preferred food of many birds — don't come out in cold temperatures.
Birds don't have much to do until the insects come out, so birds that wander use the time to find a spot for the day.
That's where the singing comes in. Birds that already have a territory — including chickens — sing to send a message to both neighboring birds and passers-by that this is their territory.
So, the next time you hear a rooster crow or a song bird happily chirping in the early morning, you'll know what they are really saying. Keep out!

Family Living Focus

Tioga Co. Extension Agent

Linda Yungwirth

Summer days are here at last . . . a familiar saying for this time of year. But summer means more time in the sun. A suntan used to indicate a sign of good health, but it no longer signifies that quality. Too much exposure to the sun may damage the skin. It also increases the risk of getting skin cancer which strikes 600,000 Americans each year!

Skin cancer is of special concern to the farming community since farm families spend considerable time in the sun doing their work in the fields. Areas of the body not covered by clothing are particularly sensitive to the sun's rays. A place for concern for farmers is the back of the neck and ears.

Here are some preventative measures that your family can use during the heat of the summer:

1. Avoid exposure to the sun, especially between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. That's the time the sun's rays are the most intense and can cause most harm.

2. For more protection, use a sun screen. Sun Factor Protection — A number ranging from 2 - 45 telling how many times longer you can stay in the sun before burning than you can with no protection. The minimum recommended is SPF 15. Select a brand which has both UVA protection (ultraviolet rays, year round, and probe skin deeply causing premature aging and some cancer), and UVB protection (ultraviolet intense rays of the summer causing sunburn and skin cancers). Apply it a half hour to an hour before exposure to the sun.

3. If you take any medications, check to see if the label says avoid excessive sunlight. Some medications make your skin extra sensitive to sun.

Wear protective clothing such as long-sleeved shirts, pants, and wide-brimmed hats.

5. Check your skin regularly for any new raised growths, itchy patches or changes in moles. Take advantage of free skin screenings offered by local hospitals or Farm City Day events. If there are none in your area, see a physician or skin specialist if you suspect any unusual condition on your skin. Remember, if detected early skin cancer can be cured.

By limiting your exposure to the sun and using these protective measures you can decrease your risk of getting skin cancer and still enjoy the summer season.

Black Walnut Tree Kills Tomato Plants

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Unfortunately, the roots of your neighbor's tree don't stop at property lines.

Black walnut trees kill a wide variety of plants. The poison comes in the form of juglone, a substance produced mostly in the tree's roots. Butternut and English walnut trees grafted onto black walnut rootstocks also produce the toxin.

Anywhere there are roots of black walnuts — which can be 60 feet to 80 feet out from the trunk of the tree — susceptible plants will be affected by the toxin, said Jane Martin, an Ohio State University horticulturist.

Most homeowners don't intentionally purchase and plant a black walnut tree, because the large-growing tree takes up so much room, Martin said. Typically, black walnuts are found in older settings, and homeowners must try to establish a landscape around it.

A variety of trees, shrubs, annuals, perennials and vegetables have been observed growing under or near black walnut trees, Martin said. A sampling of these juglone-tolerant plants includes Japanese maples, Canadian hemlock, clematis, black raspberry, weeping forsythia, mulftiflora rose, pansies, pot-marigold, squash, melons, beans, carrots, hollyhocks, astilbe, hostas, lungwort, summer phlox and common hyacinth.

Plants sensitive to the toxin include certain varieties of tomato, potato, blackberry, blueberry, azalea, mountain laurel, rhododendron and apple. Plants such as columbine, hydrangeas, rhubarb, silver maple, crabapples, Norway spruce, lilacs, cabbage, peppers and petunias are also sensitive. All of these would be dead within two months if they were planted within the root zone, and they would be dying or diseased if planted at the margins.

The toxin also occurs in the leaves, bark and wood of black walnuts, but in much lower concentrations than in the roots.

The leaves can be used after they are composted, Martin said, because the toxin breaks down within a month when it is exposed to air, water and bacteria. Otherwise, it can linger in the soil for up to two months. Sawdust mulch, fresh sawdust and wood chips not good for sensitive plants, although bark that's composted at least six months should be safe.

To make sure the finished compost is safe to use, plant a few tomato seedlings in the compost. If they live, the compost is OK. If not, wait another couple of weeks and try agin.

For a more complete listing of sensitive and non-sensitive plants, contact your local Extension office and ask for Factsheet HYD-1148-93. You can also find the information on the Internet at (www.ag.ohio-state.edu/~ohioline/).

Discovery Days Set

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — What would your life be like if you lived in Ephrata 250 years ago? How would you dress, what would you eat, and how would you make a living? These are just some of the questions for young people to explore as part of Discovery Days at the Ephrata Cloister, July 15-18.

The four-day program allows students to meet historians, archaeologists, craftsmen, and curators who will share their explorations into the fascinating world of the past. Using historic methods, participants will create Fraktur penmanship, make paper, create a copy book, bake bread, and print on a historic printing press.

The four-day program runs from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day and is open to students age 9 through 12. The tuition is $45 per student for the program.

Founded in 1732 by Conrad Beissel, Ephrata Cloister is one of America's earliest communal societies. Gathered in unique medieval style buildings, the community consisted of celibate Brothers and Sisters, and a married congregation of families.

Ephrata Cloister is located in Ephrata Borough, Lancaster County on Route 322 at the intersection with Route 272. The historic site is open Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. Individuals wishing more information about Discovery Days, or individuals with disabilities who need special assistance should call (717) 733-6600.

Ellen Norman Wears Tioga Dairy Princess Crown

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Tioga Co. Correspondent

MAINESBURG (Tioga Co.) — "What's this? Reality check? This says that it's time for a reality check. What is that supposed to mean?" asked Ellen Norman as she began her presentation at the Tioga County Dairy Princess pageant, held June 16.

By taking the time for a reality check, Norman followed the clues to find a beverage and products that not only taste good, but also provide essential vitamins and minerals.

What she did not know at the time of her presentation was that her reality check would also include being named the 1997 Tioga County Dairy Princess.

The 16-year-old daughter of Ernest and Dorothy Norman of Liberty, Norman will be a senior at Liberty High School this fall. She is active in school and community activities and owns 10 Jerseys on her family's farm, "Normandell."

Named Alternate Tioga County Dairy Princess was Regina Groover, the 19-year-old daughter of Gerald Groover and Teresia Muthard of Canton. Groover is a 1996 graduate of Canton High School. She enjoys showing cows, meeting with her youth group, and spending time with friends.

Amanda Graves, the 17-year-old daughter of Dennis and Christine Graves of Little Marsh, will serve as the Tioga County Dairy Ambassador for 1997. She attends Cowanesque Valley High School. The owner of three dairy animals on her family's farm, "Chrisden", she enjoys working on the family farm, being with friends, and participating in sports.

As each contestant was required to give a presentation or speech, Regina Groover entertained the audience by donning her bathrobe and looking for a special drink that could help ease her back to sleep. Warm milk turned out to be the perfect vitamin- and mineral-packed beverage.

Amanda Graves chose to give a speech on the basics of farming. She highlighted the major breeds of dairy animals and the process of milking cows. She also noted the many products that come from milk.

Each contestant also had to answer an impromptu question which they picked from a handful of questions held by Master of Ceremonies Jim Welch.

First Amanda Graves chose the question, "If you become dairy princess, would it be difficult for you to allocate time to fulfill your responsibilities?"

She answered quickly, "I'd make it my first priority." She also added that she would enjoy attending the different school promotions and other promotions.

Regina Groover's question was, "Why is milk pasteurized and homogenized?"

Groover also answered quickly and accurately that milk is pasteurized to kill the bacteria and homogenized so the cream will not separate from the milk.

Ellen Norman chose the question, " What is your favorite dairy recipe?"

"My favorite dairy recipe would be milk punch, because I love it. I love to mix ice cream and yogurt and I just make a whole bunch of wacky recipes. One of my favorite milk shakes would be chocolate and banana," said Norman.

After the presentations, the interviews and the questions were completed, judges Wanda Derr of Linden, Beth Cooley of Allenwood, and Doug Droppa of Galeton, had the task of choosing the next princess and her court.

In addition to the dairy royalty, six dairy maids will help promote dairy products throughout the county. Kristina Baker, daughter of William and Rebecca Baker of Covington; Rebecca Heyler, daughter of Kenneth and Susan Heyler of Morris; Stefanie Long, daughter of Terry and Linda Long of Lawrenceville; Veronica Miles, daughter of Kenny and Elizabeth Miles of Osceola; Emily Norman, daughter of David and Aggie Norman,of Liberty, and Katie Root, daughter of Clifford and Jackie Root of Lawrenceville, will each share the responsibilities of promoting dairy products.

In a more serious side of the evening's program, presentations were made to Tioga County DHIA in recognition of their support of the Dairy princess program.

Another special presentation was given to Carol Baker in memory of her late husband, Dan Baker, who died suddenly earlier this year. Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Coordinator Jan Harding and her assistant Arlene Wilbur presented

MACARONI AND CHEESE

2 cups macaroni
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
6-8-ounces extra sharp cheddar

Cook macaroni in a 2-quart saucepan approximately 6 minutes. While macaroni is cooking, melt butter in 2-quart saucepan, add flour and salt. Pour in milk then add cheese, cut into chunks, and stir until melted. Drain macaroni and put into 1½ -quart casserole dish. Pour cheese sauce over macaroni. Bake at 350 degrees for 15-20 minutes. Double for a big family or pot luck supper.

This recipe is one of my family's favorites, especially our kids. We frequently have this with fish sticks during Lent. My husband Ron and I have a 30-cow dairy farm and own and operate two school buses in Susquehanna County. Our children are Kenny, 5, and Allison, 3. Between farm chores, house chores, and busing, we are a pretty busy bunch, but we love farm life with all of its challenges and rewards.

FRUIT AND CREAM TORTE

1 package butter yellow cake mix
3½ -ounce package vanilla instant pudding
1½ cups milk
½ cup sour cream
1 pint strawberries, sliced
2 cups sweetened whipped cream

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Bake cake in two 8- or 9-inch cake pans as directed on package mix. Cool 10 minutes, remove from pans and cool completely. Beat pudding, milk, and sour cream on low speed until blended, about 2 minutes. Let stand 3 to 5 minutes until thickened. Split cake to make 4 layers. Spread ⅔ cup pudding mixture to edge of one cake layer. Top with ⅔ cup fruit. Repeat twice. Frost top and sides of cake with whipped cream. Refrigerate.

With strawberry season approaching, this recipe is a delicious way to use them along with real dairy products.

My husband David and I milk 40 registered Jerseys in upstate New York. We have two sons David, 15, and Mike, 11. I love to bake and enjoy reading all the recipes and hints printed in the Home section. I especially enjoy the June issues.

We are late planting our crops this year. It rains every other day and the weather has been much colder than normal. Hopefully the weather will change soon and we can get back on schedule.

ICE CREAM PUDDING

2 small boxes instant vanilla pudding
1½ cups milk
½ gallon ice cream (any flavor)

Add milk to vanilla pudding. Stir with a whisk until thoroughly mixed and thickened.

Soften ice cream slightly. Add to pudding and stir wiht a whisk until smooth.

Refrigerate one hour before serving.

This is a very easy and quickly-made dessert, especially delicious in summertime.

We live in the country on a 5-acre farmette and have sheep, a goat, and 2 wobbly calves. Two of our sons work with my husband in his commercial construction business. They like this dessert very much and ask for it often.

We enjoy watching the birds at our feeders outside the kitchen window and have seen 13 different species so far this spring. I enjoy counted cross stitch and quilting while my husband and son collect and restore antique John Deere farm trators. We all delight in our nine grandchildren that our married children have given us. They are truly a gift from God.

DELICIOUS DAIRY DRINK

⅓ cup frozen orange concentrate
½ cup milk
½ cup water
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
6 ice cubes

Blend all together and add 1 scoop vanilla ice cream to each glass before serving. Makes approximately 3 cups.

We live on a small dairy just south of Farmersville. Our two sons, Vernon and Daniel, ages 3 and 2 years old, love to be in the barn while daddy milks. They also love to help feed the calves. I think living in the country and especially being able to live on a farm, is a privilege. We take for granted. Wilmer and I both enjoy reading Lancaster Farming, and are also grateful to be a part of "America's Health Kick."

TASTY CAKES

1¾ cups sugar
4 eggs
2 tablespoons butter, melted
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk

Cream together sugar, eggs, melted butter, and vegetable oil. Add flour, baking powder, vanilla, and salt. Beat until well blended. Gradually add milk, beat well. Pour into greased 11x15-inch baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. Take from oven, spread with 1½ cups peanut butter. Cool. (I put in freezer until firm to touch).

For topping: melt 2 cups chocolate chips, 2 teaspoons vegetable oil, spread on top of peanut butter. Chill in refrigerator until firm, cut into squares. Store in refrigerator. Yields 4 dozen squares.

I'm 16 years old and live on an 85-acre dairy farm with my parents Lowell and Nancy, brother Dale, 20, and Tina, 10. We are milking 40 cows.

SPINACH QUICHE PARTY SQUARES

2 eggs, beaten
1 cup milk
¼ cup butter, melted
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ cup chopped onions
1 package frozen chopped spinach, thawed and drained (use 1 pound fresh if available)
½ pound shredded cheese
½ pound shredded Swiss cheese

In a large bowl, mix in order, blending well after each addition. Spread mixture into a 13x9-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Cool slightly and cut into squares. Serve warm.

Note: These can be easily frozen and reheated in oven or microwave.

With fresh spinach coming on now, I thought this would be good. I've eaten this recipe with parmesan cheese mixed along and then made into balls with a toothpick inserted and baked quickly in microwave. There are so many variations we veteran cooks can do for a new twist in our cooking. I've always cooked since I could stand on the wood stove plate at my grandma's. Grandma used to work in Lancaster County on a farm with my grandpa around Ironville where my mom was born in 1907. Pap earned $50 a year. Grandma taught me to fry an egg and I still have my frying pan. They traveled across the river on a flat boat. Grandma helped pick tobacco worms.

I'm 67 years old and live on a farm.

I bake this for church suppers and always cooked for the threshers, neighbors, friends, and family. I milked cows, made butter, cottage cheese, cheese pies, and cakes.

Happy Trails. Thank God for milk.

Ida's Notebook

by Ida Risser

This has been a good year for sugar peas in our garden. They seemed to like the cool and dry weather. I picked a lot, froze a lot, and sold a lot.

One evening about dusk, as I was still picking, I heard an unusual sound. Looking down across our meadow, I saw a large deer heading for a woodlot. It was breathing hard as I suppose it had been chased. We seldom see deer in our area.

Due to the dry weather our strawberries have not attained very much size. Thus, we only sold a few. This year I've asked my neighbors to pick up the berries here instead of my delivering them to their houses as I'd done for many years.

One added responsibility this past week was the care of a big dog. My sister and her family took a trip in their large motor home and only took their cat. They were concerned that the dog would be so lonely that it would not eat anything. The opposite was true as it gobbled up everything that we fed to it.

At least it gave me a reason to take a walk down our usually quiet road. Although, I was concerned that a passing car or truck might come by unexpectedly. I surely wanted to give the dog back in good condition.

Our resident bluebird has started a second family after taking a few weeks off from raising young ones. The birds are a joy to watch as I put my houseplants outside. The first ones were put in the garden too early and they froze. Maybe I will have to buy a few plants. Mostly I simply start new ones from the existing ones that I already have.

SPITZBUBEN BARS

1 cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 egg yolks
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix together all ingredients to make a soft dough. Press two-thirds of dough into a greased 9x13-inch pan. Cover with 12-ounce jar of apricot or peach jam. Dot with remaining dough. Bake at 350 degrees for about 40 minutes. Cut into squares when almost cooled.

My husband and I are hay, grain, and dry bean farmers in the Finger Lakes region of New York State. We have two daughters, Linnell, 10, and Serita, 7. I am a professional quilter in my sparetime.

This bar cookie recipe came from a dear friend who brought the cookies to a 20th college reunion at our home. I make it often, especially in summer when we have lots of extra people to fee. Any flavor of homemade jam tastes good with the buttery dough.

4 cups milk

Melt butter in baking dish and grease sides of dish. Pour in uncooked macaroni and stir until coated. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Add milk and cheese. Stir all together in baking dish.

I live in Armstrong County in Kittanning on a 100-cow dairy farm. Currently there are four generations living on the farm. The farm is owned by Roy E. and Martha Bowser but the work is done by my family, the Freehlings. They farm 650 acres on ground to feed the cows, steers, chickens, and pigs.

During the day, I work for a local sugeon. At night and on weekends, I help with the calves and pigs.

Also, I'm the president of the Armstrong County Dairy Princess Committee and our group is trying our best to promote milk and our dairy products throughout the county.

I would not have it any other way than being raised on a dairy farm. Dairy people are kind, friendly, and special people.

Remember to drink milk as it does the body good and look for the Got Milk? signs in Armstrong County.

THE CRITTER THAT ALWAYS SEEMS TO WIN

We've recently consumed your tomato patch. Allow us to introduce ourselves. You have probably seen us around your beans, squash, peas, sunflowers, and fruit trees. Allow us to stay and we will take advantage of your invitation.

What are we? We are vegetarians but we may consume grasshoppers and snails on occasion. We are quite common in the Northeast.

Some people call us woodchucks, groundhogs, or whistle pigs. We can weigh 4 to 12 pounds and we come in varying shades of reddish brown (albino and black-furred individuals are possible). Our average life span is about five years.

We prefer to live in farmlands but make use of any open and sunny location. Well drained knolls and abandoned foundations are preferred for our burrow sites. We have at least two openings to our burrows. You have probably noticed we sit at the main entrance with a mound of fresh earth around the opening. We have escape routes as well. Our burrows can be as deep as five feet and spread several yards in any direction.

Our typical family has four to six members. Our young are born underground. By June and July our family begins to forage seeking everything that's green and tender in your garden. They soon strike out on their own seeking their fame, fortune, and a place to call home. If you have seen one of our family — expect more.

We prefer the early morning and evening hours for feeding. When not feeding, we are sun bathing. We can climb trees, fence posts, and the like if need be. We generally do not travel more than 50 yards from our burrow.

Our enemies include hawks, owls, foxes, coyotes, bobcats, weasels, dogs, and humans. If woodchucks were a problem to you last growing season, you will need a plan for this year.

As woodchucks, we hate giving this information out but . . . there are different strategies to rid us from your garden.

Use fencing made of heavy poultry wire (at least 3 feet high) to deter us. Bury the lower edge of the fence into the ground 12 inches. The lower 6 inches should be bent outward in a L-shaped angle. Some gardeners use metal coat hangers cut in half to form a large bobby pin to secure the fence into the ground. A single wire of electric fence could be use by itself or with the poultry wire. Place the electric strand 4 to 5 inches off the ground.

Scarecrows and other dummies can sometimes provide temparary relief. Move them regularly and include a high level of human activity whenever possible. Remember that we learn quickly.

The gas cartridge (carbon monoxide) is the most common means for woodchuck control. They are available from local farm supply stores. Please read the directions before purchasing and using the cartridge. They can pose a fire hazard and should not be used under buildings.

Live traps (10 x 10 x 24) can sometimes be effective. Use apple slice, carrots, broccoli or lettuce as baits. Change the baits daily. Place the trap at main entrances or in travel lanes. Captured animals can be relocated to other areas where no damage can be caused. Trapping may be unlawful in your community. Please check with officials. After an animal is trapped, transport it at least 10 miles away.

There are no repellents or toxicants registered for woodchucks. However, red hot pepper (cayenne) sprinkled on the leaves of growing plants teach us not to dine in your location.

Other techniques for effective control are available from your Extension Office. Ask for wildlife damage control sheet # 8 on woodchucks.

To Be A Queen Is No Easy Task— Especially With A Mite On Your Back

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State is studying the causes of increased rates of queen loss and supersedure in mite-infested honey bee colonies. The study is to determine whether tracheal and/or Varroa mite feeding produces smaller, less productive queens and what kinds of diseases mites may spread to queens.

Some of the queens examined will be commercially-availabe queens sold by queen breeders and package producers. However, these young queens have only been exposed to mites for a few weeks. In order to determine the full effects of mite damage, the study will also need a large number of older queens that have been in mite-infested colonies from two months up to two years.

Penn State is asking beekeepers for help. "We are only interested in queens that are failing (laying spotting brood patterns and/or little brood compared to other coloines. During the spring and summer of 1997, if you notice that one or two of your queens is failing, consider contributing the bee to the study," said a spokesperson for the Queen Project.

Send a pair of live queens in two queen cages with attendants for evaluation. One queen should be a failing queen from your colonies. The other should be a healthy queen, also from your colonies, which will be tested for comparison. No more than two failing queens paired with two healthy queens per beekeeper accepted.

Penn State will compensate you for your queens.

For detailed information on how to participate, call Albert Rozo or Jennifer Finley at (814) 865-1895. Call before sending any queens.

As the Monday evening program drew to a close Lisa Fitch took her final walk as the Tioga County Dairy Princess.

"I can't believe it's been a year since I was crowned. What a turning point in my life!" said Fitch.

"I understand that this is my farewell speech, but I do not look at this as a farewell, but as a hello, or a welcome, to a turning point in Tioga County in my life," she continued.

Fitch went on to thank everyone who made her year a special one, especially her parents, to whom she said, "I'm a proud farmer's daughter!"

Although she's giving up her Tioga County crown, Fitch will continue her reign as the second alternate Pennsylvania Dairy Princess until September.

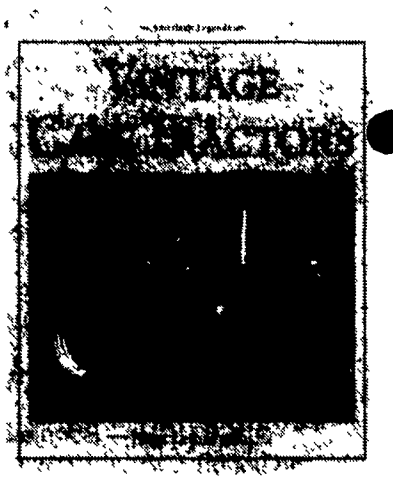
Book Review

Of Special Interest To Farmers



Jerome Increase Case was a visionary. Alongside John Deers, Cyrus Hall McCormic, and Henry Ford, he was one of the great pioneers of North American agriculture. Case founded the venerable J. I. Case Threshing Maching Company in 1842, building novel threshing machines and soon, early steam-powered tractors at their headquarters in Racine, Wisconsin.

From the begining, demand for Case's machines exceeded wuppply, and his company prospered. Now the oldest of the surviving tractor makers, Case has long been celebrated for its threshers, steam and gas tractors, and a full line of farming implements that are sold throughout the world.

A new book entitled Vintage Case Tractors by Peter Letourneau (Voyageur press, $24.95) celebrates the legacy of Jerome Case. Packed with historical photoes, full-color contemporary shots of collectible tractors, and period advertisements, the more than 150 photos and detailed captions trace the history of Case, highlighting differences in design and styling and showcasing a wide variety of machines from the most popular models to the rarest, little-known oddities.

Lettie Nissley led devotions reading Psalm 23 and a poem from school days.

The program featured Dr. Calvin Wenger, who brought smiles with his 30 minutes of anecdotes, each with a surprise ending. Dr. Wenger has been well known among the members, even from his birth.

After the business meeting and many dates to jog memories for the future, members were dismissed with the theme song.

Lebanon Society 21

Lebanon Society 21 met on May 19 at the home of Gerri Heagy. Gerri showed her beautiful flower gardens and shared many plants with members. Members also brought along flowers for a plant swap.

Co-hostess Jane Emrich read the verses and everyone sang the chorus, "This Is My Father's World."

A new member, Jeanette Shuey was welcomed.

Weather permitting, members will go miniature golfing at the next meeting.

Berks Society 6

The Berks Society of Farm Women Group #6 meeting for April was in the home of Joyce Mast. Speaker was Sandy Kissinger from the Berks County chapter of the Red Cross. Her presentation was vrey informative and interesting on the many ways that the Red Cross helps communities.

During May, everyone's birthday was celebrated at the Pleasantville Inn. Gifts were exchanged and door prizes handed out after a delicious meal.

Cautions Of New Off-Exchange Traded Ag Options

AMES, Iowa — A proposal offering more agricultural market pricing alternatives to farmers is under scrutiny by ag officials concerned about the economic well being of U.S. producers. Off-exchange agricultural options, prohibited for the last several years because of abuse, are being considered again as risk management tools to help farmers weather volatile markets.

The options contracts, simply defined, are those in which one commercial party sells, for a fee, the right to buy or sell a commodity, at a pre-determined price. If the proposal is approved by the CFTC later this year, only commercial agricultural participants, such as farmers and grain processors, could use the options.

Richard Ellinghuysen, a CFTC agricultural adviser, believes the new off-exchange products could help producers, if properly regulated. "The combination of the new farm bill, along with NAFTA and GATT, has increased the need for farmers to use profit and risk management strategies," said Ellinghuysen, Director of Program Development for National Farmers.

Currently, producers purchase price protection options through regulated entities such as the Chicago, Minneapolis and Kansas City Boards of Trade. Off-exchange traded ag options would allow an elevator, insurance company or others to offer contracts that would compete with major exchange options, but potentially without important safeguards. The exchange regulated options require companies to meet specific financial criteria, and balance trading on a daily basis with cash, assuring farmers of their performance. The newly proposed off-exchange products may not meet stringent safety requirements.

National Farmers, an agricultural organization which represents the nation's independent farm producers, believes the prohibition of off-exchange trade options should not be lifted unless the following regulations govern the new products.

- A federal agency, such as CFTC or SEC, would oversee the new products
- Financial criteria would be established that would ensure companuies could withstand substantial changes in market conditions, and still protect farmers
- Financial risks must be disclosed to producers, in layman's terms
- Regular and on-going federal financial audits would be conducted of companies offering products

"If these critieria are met, we believe that off-exchange ag options could be of real benefit to producers, because competition would stimulate better products, some being more farmer friendly than those presently offered," said Ellinghuysen. Regulation would create the financial safety that farmers require.

Recent hedge to arrive (HTA) contract activity has shaken the confidence of lenders in off-exchange, futures-styled products, and Ellinghuysen emphasized that assurances must be provided that the off-exchange options reduce risk for the farmer and do not increase it.

"In the cold, hard light of the off-exchange product called hedge to arrive, and the problems surrounding it, it's clear an appropriate regulatory structure must be maintained with any initiation of additional market deregulation," Ellinghuysen emphasized.

USDA Announces New Conservation Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Eligible Pennsylvania farmers soon will be able to apply for funding to correct local natural resource problems in 20 selected watersheds, said Janet L. Oertly, state conservationist for the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS).

NRCS in Pennsylvania received $3.4 million to fund projects through the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP), newly authorized in the 1996 Farm Bill. EQIP, a voluntary program, provides financial assistance of up to 75 percent of the cost to install or apply certain conservation practices, such as grassed waterways, filter strips, and manure storage structures. Incentive payments can be made to encourage producers to manage certain resources such as manure and nutrients. The program is limited to agricultural and livestock producers. Eligible land include cropland, forestland, and pasture. NRCS, a U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Agency, administers EQIP.

"This program will help producers address some of the most critical natural resource concerns, such as soil erosion, water quality and quantity, wildlife habitat, and wetlands," Oertly said. "More productive croplands, cleaner water, and better wildlife will beneift all Pennsylvania residents."

This fiscal year, 65 percent of the cost-share funds will be targeted toward local resource issues in the 20 watersheds, and 35 percent will be targeted toward two statewide resource concerns — crop production and livestock and poultry production, Oertly said.

Producers can apply for assistance relating to these statewide concerns from June 30-July 11 at any NRCS, FSA, or conservation district office, she said.

Local groups, consisting of federal, state and local agencies and interested natural resource organizations, submitted areas from across the state for consideration. The 20 watersheds, or geographic priority areas, and the statewide resource concerns were selected by Oertly, in conjunction with the State Technical Committee, and USDA-Farm Service Agency. These areas have significant soil, water, or related natural resource concerns.

Since most of the funding will be distributed through the geographic priority areas, producers within these areas have a better chance of receiving funding, Oertly said. Each geographic area will announce its own signup period, she said. Producers outside the watersheds can become involved in the program through the two statewide resource concerns.

A conservation plan is needed for all EQIP contracts, which are five to 10 years in lenght. NRCS and county conservation district staffs will provide the technical and educational assistance producers need to apply or install conservation practices based on their conservation plan, Oertly said. The plan will describe conservation and management practices to protect soil, water, air, or related natural resources.

With an annual budget of $200 million authorized through 2002, EQIP is USDA's largest conservation program designed to conserve and improve land while it remains in agricultural production. EQIP replaces several former programs, including the Agricultural Conservation Program and the Agricultural Water Quality Incentives Program.

For more information about the program, contact your local NRCS, Farm Service Agency, or conservation district office.

TRAINER ANIMALS IN THE FEEDLOT

A recent report from Ohio State University (Fluharty, et al) has shown the effects of using "trainer" cows and steers on starting calves on feed. The purpose of using the trainers would be to teach the young, probably unweaned, calf how to get started eating in the feedlot as soon as possible. Calves that start to eat faster tend to have fewer respiratory problems, and they recover pay weight more quickly.

In this study an open, crossbred cow was housed with a group of 18 newly purchased steers weighing about 550 pounds. A similar number were housed with either a yearling steer or no trainer animal. The results indicate the cows do a decent job of getting the calves started eating more quickly. On day 1 after arrival, 81.7 percent of those housed with the cows were eating, while only 48.3 percent of those with no trainer were eating. Those housed with steers were intermediate. These results continued for about three days, after which there was no difference in the percentage of the pen eating feed.

Morbidity among the pens was not different. However, the trainer steers became sick after introduction of the new calves. It appears the use of trainer cows may be beneficial in getting newly-arrived feeder cattle started on feed, particularly when it is known that the calves have not eaten from a bunk or drunk from an automatic waterer.

Programmed Feeding

A second Ohio report (Knoblich et al) has shown the results of using a programmed feeding regimen on feedlot steers. It has been well documented that feedlot cattle fed ad lib will generally be less efficient in converting feed to gain compared to those fed at some designated level of gain. In this study there were five treatment groups that included all ad lib feeding, or programmed feeding for rates of gain of 2.5 pounds per day (70, 170, 170, or 120 days for each of the four groups, 3.0 pounds per day for 170, 270, 170, or 220 days for the four groups, and for ad lib gains for 270, 70, 170, or 170 days).

The results indicated there would be no difference in feed intake or animal performance after 84 days on feed. After combining the date from days 1 through 84, there was reduced feed consumption across all the programmed groups, but similar rates of gain. Feed savings per calf was 125, 309, 159, and 233 pounds for the four programmed feeding groups.

The steers were all slaughtered at a weight-constant endpoint of 1,250 pounds. There were no differences in carcass weight, dressing percentage, ribeye area, quality grade, or percentage Choice among the different feeding programs. Feed efficiency was best for those steers fed for fewer days ad lib, and these groups also had the least fat thickness at slaughter. Percentage Choice tended to be variable among the groups (78, 77, 67, 85, and 81 percent), and these values were not related to fat thickness or feeding regimen.

This study indicates offering feed ad lib to feedlot cattle may not be the most cost-effective method. It is important to determine when during the feeding period the most efficient gains can be made without sacrificing carcass quality and value. The results presented here indicate cattle can be fed to moderate weight gains in the first third of the feeding period, but gains should reach 3 pounds per day for at least one-third of the feeding period.

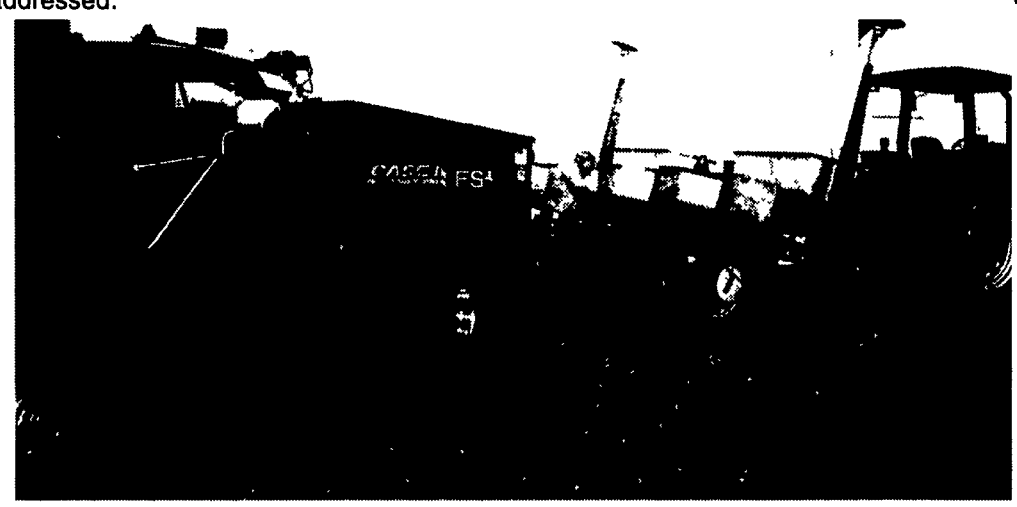
THINK SUMMERTIME, UPTIME SERVICE
For Your Planter or Drill

Binkley & Hurst Bros. planter technicians are through the Spring startup rush - poised, ready to evaluate and service your planter. In the past, many of this areas' best corn and bean growers have taken advantage of our Winter Uptime Planter Service. This Summer we are proposing a different approach.

SUMMERTIME UPTIME PLANTER SERVICE!

It really makes sense if you take a minute to think about it. In winter, your planter is buried behind other equipment in an unheated equipment shed or barn floor. Any questions or problems concerning use of your planter this spring are still fresh in your mind and can be addressed.



30 Point Checkup Improves Your Planters Performance

Soybean Inoculants Part Of Field Discussion

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Handling new soybean inoculant products, viewing a response to these products, plus current issues about soybean production will be the topics for discussion on July 9 at the David Bitler Farm, Fleetwood, 10 a.m. to noon.

Inoculants are a recommended practice when growing soybeans, especially on soils with no past history of growing soybeans. But producers have experienced mixed results due to difficult handling of the inoculant, especially when growers are pressed for time in the field.

Dr. Elwood Hatley, Department of Agronomy, Penn State University, will be present to lead the discussion along with Bitler. Growers are encouraged to attend and share their experiences.

Directions to the field are as follows: Rt. 222 to Rt. 662 S. to Fleetwood. At first stop sign, Main Street, Fleetwood, turn left. Travel through and out of town on Main St. (becomes Fleetwood-Lyons Rd.) 2½ miles. Turn right onto Deka Rd. 200 feet beyond Weaver's Hardware. Vista Grande Farm sign is at this road. Continue on Deka Rd. to first farm on right. Park in farm drive by machine shop.

Dairy Programmer Joins White Oak Mills

Staci Barnett

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — White Oak Mills has announced the addition of Staci Barnett, Quarryville, to its professional dairy team.

Barnett serves as a full-time White Oak Mills dairy formulations programmer.

Having earned the distinguished Beliasov Agricultural Scholarship, Barnett was a Penn State University dean's list student and a pre-veterinary club member. She received her bachelor of science degree in animal science from Penn State in May 1997.

At White Oak, Barnett is responsible for overseeing dairy computer formulating for White Oak's dairy specialists. Her new duties include providing computer and technical support, updating feed formulas, and implementing dairy quality control measures. In addition, Barnett will assist with customer service.

For approximately one-and-a-half years, Barnett served as an undergraduate research assistant at Penn State's Department of Veterinary Science. During this time, she studied the ecology of Salmonella in dairy herds. She also has assisted with the feeding and health management of an independent swine farm for the past 12 years.

Program Prepares Young Farmers For Success

WILMINGTON, Del. — "The New Century Farmer must be an alert participant in all sectors of agriculture. They must understand consumer preferences, both foreign and domestic. They must be willing to adapt to the desires of the market in a pro-active manner. Communications and understanding will be key to long-term success in the next century."

In the eyes of DuPont Agricultural Products, these visionary words, written by Allyn Buhrow of West Brooklyn, Ill., are an exciting statement about the future of agriculture and a viewpoint it hopes to nourish through its first-ever New Century Farmers Program.

Initiated last fall at the National FFA Convention, the program, which is sponsored by DuPont in cooperation with the National FFA Organization, is designed to help young people, who are committed to pursuing farming as a career, learn and grow into successful farmers in the 21st century.

Allyn Buhrow is one of 40 young farmers selected to participate in the inaugural class of the New Century Farmers Program. He and 39 other 18- to 22-year-olds were selected from a pool of competitive applications, filled out by young farmers from coast to coast early this year. The 40 successful applicants were chosen by committee through a "blind" selection process, and include students from 18 states, representing many different geographies and types of farming operations.

During an intensive four-day seminar, taking place July 9-13 at the Agricultural Technology Center in Lexington, Illinois, the New Century Farmers will learn from each other and a host of industry experts during a series of workshops and sessions on issues and topics ranging from the global marketplace to farm financing, consumer trends to managing risk. In addition to classroom learning, students will be exposed to the latest developments in agricultural technology, field tours, sessions on personal and professional development, and team-building and self-esteem exercises. The power-packed program is designed to provide participants with valuable learning that they can take home and apply to their operations and studies, as well as resources and friendships that they can draw upon throughout their careers.

Following the July seminar, The New Century Farmers will be paired with "mentor" farmers, who are past participants in DuPont's other leadership programs, including the ASA-DuPont Young Leader Program in the soybean industry, the Produce Industry Leadership Program, the Cotton Leadership Program and more. The New Century Farmers will have the opportunity to visit their mentor's operation, listen and learn from him or her about the farming business, and begin to develop key relationships with today's leaders in agriculture.

"Young farmers are a vital ingredient to the continued strength and productivity of American agriculture, and we in industry need to encourage them to be open to the many possibilities that exist in farming today and into the next century," said Yale Schalk, U.S. marketing manager, DuPont Agricultural Products. "The DuPont New Century Farmers program is all about exploring these possibilities, and helping the dreams, visions and ambitions of 40 top-notch young people become reality."

The importance of young people to the success of agriculture is echoed by Glenn Sims, senior regional director of the National FFA Foundation. "Production agriculture has always been a cornerstone of FFA, and of vital importance to this country's well-being, now and in the future. The DuPont New Century Farmers program helps young farmers of today see that future in a brigher way."

Deere Announces New Tractor Options

MOLINE, Ill. — John Deere has announced some changes and new options for its current tractor line to meet the needs of its customers.

When John Deere introduced the 8000 Series Tractors in 1994, the largest model, the 8400, featured the new 8.1-liter PowerTech™ engine. The other three models used John Deere 7.6-liter engines. Recently, John Deere announced that all four 8000 Series Tractors will use 8.1-liter engines. The rated horsepower of each model remains the same.

The 8.1-liter engines provide a 40 percent torque rise and up to a 10 percent power bulge within a wide rpm range. The power bulge delivers as much as 16 to 22 additional horsepower (above rated power) automatically, for pulling through tough spots and less downshifting. The electronic governor also provides a Field Cruise™ feature that the operator can set to maintain a consistent ground speed in light-load operations, such as cultivating or spraying.

The engines' improved cooling package features a belt-driven viscous fan-drive clutch that automatically adjusts fan speed to match engine cooling requirements. An automatic tensioner ensures proper belt tension and reduces service requirements. Directed cooling around the top of the cylinder liners reduces temperatures by 100 degrees for increased engine durability.

The John Deere 8300T tractor, rated at 200 horsepower, features a standard 16-inch rubber track that provides 19.8 square feet of total ground-contact area. The optional 24-inch track provides 29.7 square feet of contact area.

A new low-clearance cab is available as an option for 75-, 85-, and 95-hp John Deere 6000 Series Tractors. It is designed especially for operating in orchards and groves, or around buildings with low overhangs and doorways. The cab's unique A-frame design improves clearance at the top by 9.4 inches on each side compared to the regular ComfortGard™ cab. Overall height is 5 inches lower also. On a tractor with 16.9-24 rear tires, the low-clearance cab reduces the overall tractor height to 94.3 inches.

Left- and right-hand doors are provided for convenient entry and exit from either side of the tractor. Standard air-conditioning and heating, and a SuperComfort seat with adjustable armrests, lumbar support, and backrest angle enhance the operator's comfort and productivity.

John Deere also announced that its 5400N and 5500N Tractors, which are used in orchards, vineyards, and other specialty areas, can now be equipped with a factory-installed cab. The cab features dual entry for easy access and comfort of heating and air-conditioning. The narrow width and low height provide good crop clearance and all-around visibility.

A swing-out rear window, two sets of bosses for attaching monitors and electronic equipment, and a windshield wiper and washer are standard. A tilt-steering column, rear-window wiper and washer, and radio are available as options.

For operator protection, a certified ROPS (rollover protective structure) is an integral part of the cab design.

For loader operators who want maximum productivity and convenience, John Deere has introduced two PowrQuad™-transmission options for its 6000 Series Tractors.

The optional left-hand direction reverser enables the operator to make forward-reverse shuttle shifts at any speed by using the reverser lever, conveniently located on the left side of the steering column. Each shift is modulated for a smooth direction change, without using the clutch pedal. Also, the reverser has a neutral position that permits stopping or restarting without clutching.

For vegetable or other operations requiring slow travel speeds, a 12x12 creeper option for the PowrQuad transmission with left-hand reverser provides 28 speeds in both forward and reverse. With the creeper engaged, forward speeds range from .15 to .86 mph, and reverse speeds run from .17 to 1.03 mph.

"HI-MOISTURE SHELLED CORN"

You know the advantages of hi-moisture shelled corn versus dry corn for animal feeding. So now consider the many advantages of POURED CONCRETE to store and protect your valuable grain.

"Our 6" thick concrete walls reflect 38% of light beams, resulting in 780 times more heat-resisting ability than steel, and 25 times more insulating power than steel."

"Our 6" thick walls have a very low leak potential compared to pre-fab silos of any kind, and a very low maintenance requirement."

"PROTECT YOUR CORN FROM THE HEAT."

These farmers from Virginia "switched" to our poured concrete silo to store their shelled corn and said: "Even during the hottest summer in our memory, the shelled corn from our poured concrete silo has kept its bright yellow color and has not heated. We have the best hi-moisture corn ever." (Cave View Farm, Inc., Weyers Cave, VA.)

76 Cow Total Ventilation System - Denver, PA

Lapp's Barn Equipment can install a high-performance/high efficiency tunnel ventilation system in your barn. A tunnel ventilation system will give you an even air flow throughout your barn of 2-5 mph. This gives you the advantage of better controlling temperature to give your cows more comfort which means more milk!! Also, a tunnel ventilation system eliminates circulating fans, provides summer and winter ventilation and controls fly problems! An optional unit can even automate your ventilation so you will never even have to worry about it when you're not there, so you can concentrate on other things!

At Lapp's, we sell high quality ventilation systems manufactured by Acme Engineering, Acme products feature such things as.

- Galvanized Construction
- Wide Cambered Propeller
- Rivited Blades
- Unique Captured Bearings
- Vertical Support Frame
- Screens Pre-cut
- Totally Enclosed Motors
- Optional Discharge Diffuser Cone
- Optional Belt Tightener

MILK PRODUCTION HIGHER SOMATIC CELL COUNT LOWER AS MORE DAIRYMEN TEST FORMULA-M

As I am writing this, there are hundred and hundreds more Dairymen testing Formula M. The results are trickling in. By the time you read this, we may have the final results. I have been testing Formula M for years and all the results have exceeded my expectations in appetite improvement; higher energy level; giving more milk; cows (even the extremely difficult or next to impossible ones) getting pregnant on the first breeding.

AND NOW!!! Dairymen everywhere are telling me that the Somatic Cell Count goes down when they feed Formula M. Over and over, I am hearing that the Somatic Cell Count goes way down. Dairymen tell me that they have tried other products and that they thought they saw some benefits, but the same Dairymen tell me that they see very dramatic differences almost immediately when using Formula M. Dairymen say they see a vast improvement in energy level and appetite. They say that they can see a significant increase in milk in a week to ten days after starting on Formula M. Some Dairymen say their cows average 5 pounds more milk per cow, per day. The last reports I am waiting for are on Somatic Cell Count. They keep coming in and they keep verifying what we have been told many times before, that the Somatic Cell Count goes way down when feeding Formula M.

If I had known all this before I set the price, (8¢ per cow, per day) I might have charged more. After all, it looks like most Dairymen will make an extra $1.00 per cow, per day.

Formula M is a powder and it comes in a 5 gallon plastic bucket. Feed Formula M according to the directions on the label, only ½ ounce per cow per day. (Formula M is very concentrated. ½ ounce per day is all they need). You can put Formula M in the TMR, you can put it in your grain mix or if you prefer, you can top dress Formula M. All you need to do to get Formula M is call one of the numbers below. We ship the same day by UPS. Make the check payable to FRANK LAMPLEY and give it to the driver when he delivers.

A 5 gallon bucket is enough for about 40 cows for one month and costs only $92.00 (I pay freight). Formula M is completely free of drugs and made by the same people who make Vitamix.

There is one question that keeps coming up over and over, "How long do I have to keep feeding the Formula M?" "Forever?" The answer is, "Only as long as you want to keep making the extra dollar per day, per cow."
